JUDGE ROAN'S SENTENCE OF FRANK TO DEATH

STATE OF GEORGIA, vs. LEO M. FRANK.

Indictment for murder, Fulton superior court, May term, 1913. Verdict of guilty, July term, 1913. Whereupon, it is considered, ordered and adjudged by the court that the defendant, Leo M. Frank, be taken from the bar of this court to the common jail of the county of Fulton, and that he be there safely kept until his final execution in the manner fixed by law.

It is further ordered and adjudged by the court that on the tenth day of October, 1913, the defendant, Leo M. Frank, shall be executed by the sheriff of Fulton county in private, witnessed only by the executing officer, a sufficient guard, the relatives of such defendant, and such clergymen and friends as he may desire; such execution to take place in the common jail of Fulton county, and that said defendant on that day, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 2 o'clock p. m., be by the sheriff of Fulton county, hanged by the neck until he shall be dead, and may God have mercy on his soul.

In open court, this twenty-sixth day of August, 1913.

HUGH M. DORSEY Solicitor-General Atlanta Circuit.

L. S. ROAN, Judge Stone Mountain Circuit, Presiding.

The trial of Leo M. Frank for the murder of Mary Phagan is at an end. It is complete. With the sentencing of the convicted man to death, Tuesday morning, the last word was written in the final chapter of the trial.

A sequel will be written, however, in the higher courts. To those courts, unless Judge L. S. Roan grants their motion for a new trial, the attorneys for Frank will carry their fight to set aside the verdict and its penalty.

Newt Lee, the negro whose discovery of the body of Mary Phagan led to the exposure of her murder, has been released from the tower and has gone his way.

Jim Conley, confessed accessory in concealing the murder of Mary Phagan, will be indicted soon for his admitted offense, will plead guilty in court, and will be sentenced. The maximum penalty is three years in state prison. The new grand jury will organize Monday, and probably will consider the bill against the negro next week.

Some time soon, but perhaps not for a couple of weeks, the attorneys for Frank will file an amended motion for a new trial of their client, substituting that for the motion which they filed in court Tuesday morning. The original motion is brief. The amended motion will be many pages long, and will set forth in detail after detail every ground upon which the lawyers will seek to have their client tried again.

WILL NOT HANG OCTOBER 10.

October 4 has been set by Judge Roan as the date upon which argument for and against the motion will be heard by him. If he overrules the motion within thirty days thereafter the lawyers for Frank will take a bill of exceptions and so will carry the case to the state supreme court. If he grants the motion, the long trial will be repeated later. In either event, whether Judge Roan grants or overrules the motion for a new trial, Frank will not be hanged on October 10, though Judge Roan fixed that date in his sentence pronounced Tuesday. A writ of supersedeas will stay the execution until the motion is heard by the supreme court, if Judge Roan overrules it; and if the motion is granted, that act itself will involve the cancellation of the sentence.

If Judge Roan overrules the motion for a new trial, it is probable that the final decision of the supreme court will be known on or before next March. The supreme court either will overrule Judge Roan's decision and order a new trial, or will affirm that decision and allow the present verdict to stand. It is possible, however, that the supreme court's decision might be delayed as long as a year. Until the highest court does say the last word, Leo M. Frank can hope for life.

In a card published elsewhere in The Journal today, the attorneys for Frank characterize his trial as a farce and assert that the temper of the public mind invaded the court room.

Leo M. Frank, the condemned man, now reaffirms his innocence.

Solicitor Dorsey, representing the state, has no public comment to make except that he feels sorry for Frank's wife and mother.

FRANK RECEIVES SENTENCE.

Looking Judge L. S. Roan squarely in the eye just a few seconds before the death sentence was passed upon him, Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, said:

"Your honor, I say now, as I have always said, I am innocent. Further than this my case is in the hands of my counsel."

A few moments later Judge Roan had read his sentence commanding the sheriff to execute Frank on October 10.

The formality required scarcely five minutes, and the young factory superintendent went through the ordeal as unflinchingly as he passed through the twenty-nine days of his trial.

s he listened to the damaging testimony of the state's witnesses in the trial, he listened to the judge pass the death sentence. The authorities had kept the hour of the convening of court for the purpose of sentencing Frank a secret.

Judge Roan, however, went to his chambers at the criminal court building on the fourth floor of the Thrower building shortly after 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Shortly after 10 o'clock Attorneys Reuben R. Arnold, Luther Z. Rosser and Herbert Haas arrived and Judge Roan was informally notified that a motion for a new trial would be made. After a short conference Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor was instructed to bring Frank from the tower.

At 10:20 o'clock he arrived, accompanied by Deputies John Owens, George Broadnax and T. A. Burdette, and several friends. Frank greeted his attorneys cheerfully and declared that he was in the best of health.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey had not been down to his office during the morning and he was not summoned, his assistant acting for him.

Assistant Solicitor Stephens had not completed the writing of the formal court sentence when Frank arrived, and the prisoner remained conversing calmly with his attorneys for several minutes.

During the brief wait probably fifty people, hearing that the famous prisoner was about to be sentenced, dropped into the court room.

Judge Roan entered with the assistant solicitor, and court was formally in session.

"Mr. Frank, stand up," said the court.

Frank arose and stood near the attorneys' table.

"Over here," said a deputy, pointing to the railing in front of which so many men have stood and heard their death sentences read.

Frank walked over to the railing and stood looking Judge Roan squarely in the eye.

EXHIBITED NO EMOTION.

Frank exhibited far less emotion than the majority of the people in the court. He stood with his shoulders thrown back and his hands clasped behind his back.

"The jury, which has been trying your case for days, or rather for weeks,"

Will Atlanta Fans Stand Idle and See Birmingham Take Attendance Honors?

The Carckers Are Licking the Spots Off the Barons on the Diamond, but the Magic City Is Turning Out the Biggest Crowds

The pennant race in the Southern league, so far as the Atlanta and Birmingham clubs are concerned, is already settled. Atlanta is far ahead of the Barons, but this has not settled the fight between the two cities for the attendance honors. And the very fact that Atlanta is to finish ahead in the percentage column is causing the Birmingham fans to muster their full strength in an effort to beat out the Georgia village in the attendance fight.

Right now Birmingham has it all over Atlanta. Day in and day out the Alabama city has proven the better baseball town, although the team has been down in the second division all the year. Atlanta, on the other hand, has been right around the top since the firing of the first gun, and it appears somewhat of a setback that Birmingham should be in the lead.

Each club finishes the season at home. Each has eleven more days upon which to play games and the attendance on these remaining eleven days will go to show which is the better baseball town. Here in Atlanta we are quite sure that Atlanta has it all over the Barons, but in the Alabama city fandom canhot see Atlanta as a baseball town when it is compared with Birmingham. Each claims the title of being the best baseball city in the league, but as figures talk, the attendance mark for the season will answer the question.

To date the Birmingham club has played to 137,000 fans on the home lot against 135,300 for Atlanta. This looks like a very small margin in favor of Birmingham, but when you figure that the Barons are right now drawing just as well as at any time this year, 2,000 fans is certainly a big bunch of people, and the fans of Atlanta must take the bull by the horns and turn out and take the attendance record for the year.

Atlanta with 200,000 fans in 1907 holds the league attendance mark, and this season there is a good chance of improving upon this. The Crackers play at home eleven more days, during which time fifteen games are to be played. With an average of 5,500 attendance, the trick can be turned. But 5,500 fans is "considerable people," and no one must hold back, trusting his neighbor will attend and aid in making up the mark. Go yourself!

Between now and the end of the season are several big days, including the field day sports set for Wednesday and Labor day, when two games will be played. On these dates the figures will probably run a bit higher than the average required. And that is just what it will take.

The fans must stick back of the club to gain the result, and it is believed that Atlantians are just loyal enough to aid in the good work.

THAW LAWYERS STOP HIS PRESS CAMPAIGN AND DENY INTERVIEWS

Jerome Believes He's in for a Long Fight to Lock Refuger Behind Asylum Doors Once More

(By Associated Press.)

SHERBROOKE, Quebec, Aug. 26.—Harry K. Thaw's many lawyers, fearful lest he work his case with the erratic conduct of his self-planned press campaign, have shut him off from all interviews. They obtained from the sheriff an order to the governor of Sherbrooke jail that no one should see Thaw except in the presence of some one of his counsel.

The order prevents Thaw from giving more rambling interviews, except surreptitiously, and would circumvent any secret attempt to obtain from him a statement in which he might inadvertently reveal something about the plot resulting in his release from Matteawan.

A cold rain kept the army of lawyers, newspaper men and others brought here by the Thaw case within doors today, where foe and friend swapped theories and predictions and mutually agreed that even now, ten days after Thaw's break for liberty, legal moves for and against his return were in a state of chaos.

Although insisting that they will produce Thaw in the superior court tomorrow morning on the writ of habeas corpus and argue that his detention in Sherbrooke on the present commitment is illegal, it would not surprise those who have followed the ramifications of the case if Thaw's lawyers should abandon the writ and leave Thaw in his cell without further move until the opposition discloses its hand.

Two captains of the Salvation Army arrived here today from Montreal. They said they had been sent here to "offer Thaw spiritual consolation."

Possibility of a prolonged litigation over the constitutionality of Canada's drastic immigration act under which it is proposed to deport Harry K. Thaw was the favorite theme here today of both factions.

"I can't express an opinion on every defense suggested by Thaw's lawyers," said William T. Jerome. "We hope to get him back to Matteawan, where he belongs, but it does look as though we were in for a long siege."

Thaw continued to mail and telegraph statements to newspapers in Vermont, where, notwithstanding all the theories of court here, he apparently expects to be deported.

T. R. Williams, of the dominion immigration department, was quoted today as saying:

"We believe Harry Thaw will be promptly deported and we don't put much faith in this story that he can make an international affair of his case. Our duty is simple. We will give Thaw a hearing. As soon as he is turned down by the minister of interior, as I have every reason to believe he will be, then he will take Thaw to Vermont and turn him loose. That will settle our end of the affair."

"Gentleman Roger" Thompson sent a message last night to his widowed mother in New York telling her not to worry. His case on a charge of aiding a lunatic to cross the border will come up on Friday. Thompson has not receded

MANN OBJECTS AND PROBE OF SPEER'S CASE IS POSTPONED

Gentleman From Illinois Succeeds in Getting Consideration by Judicial Committee Put Off for a day

BARTLETT CONSIDERS CHARGES VERY GRAVE

Mann Wanted Charges Laid Before House Instead of Having Separate Committee Consider Them

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Formal consideration of the charges against Federal Judge Emory Speer by the judiciary committee were delayed for twenty-four hours today owing to the fact that Minority Leader Mann, of Illinois, objected to the unanimous consent of a resolution directing the committee to proceed with its inquiry.

If Mann persists in his objection, the committee on rules will tomorrow report a special rule, under which the resolution will be considered and passed. This action will have been taken this afternoon by the rules committee, except that it was the desire of Chairman Clayton to afford the minority leader ample opportunity in which to reconsider his objection.

Mann contended that the preceedure contemplated by the resolution was irregular and that the house should be more fully informed concerning the character of the charges against Speer before taking formal action on which an impeachment proceeding may be based.

When asked by The Journal correspondent if he intended to persist in his objection, Mr. Mann declared that he could not say. It is understood that he received recently a letter from Judge Speer, but he would not say whether this communication had to do with the charges of the department of justice.

He denied that his attitude in the matter is based upon his alleged hostility to Attorney General McReynolds, whom he scored recently in a speech for his position with reference to the Diggs-Caminetti case in California.

When Mann voiced his objection, aft-

Secrets of Fra[illegible]ury Will Never Be Kno[illegible] Public, Declare the Ti[illegible] Jurors

Foreman Winburn and Others Tell of the Troubles and Complexities of a Juror's Life—Public Sentiment Did Not Influence Them.

What occurred behind the closed doors of the jury room during the four hours and seven minutes the twelve "good men and true" were deliberating on the fate of Leo M. Frank, whom they found guilty of murdering Mary Phagan, will never be known to the public, unless one of the dozen violates a solemn oath. Immediately after the talesmen had chosen a foreman in the seclusion of their room Monday and before they balloted on the guilt or innocence of the young factory superintendent, each man raised his hand and swore never to reveal what was to come in the hours intervening between that moment and the time of their dismissal. At the time they did not know that there was such a unity of mind and that a decision was to be reached so quickly. Probably they pictured long argument and persuasion to reach an agreement.

"The men all swore solemnly, and I am sure that none will violate their oath," said Foreman Winburn Tuesday morning. "The secrets of the Frank jury room will remain secret."

The talesmen Tuesday are spending their first day of complete freedom in nearly a month. Most of them remained one more day away from their business routine to "get acquainted with their families," as one of them expressed it.

All the twelve are more or less inclined to reticence on the trial. They are tired of it, they say, and want to forget all about legal battles and murder cases for a few days at least. "It was the most serious thing in my life, this sending a man to death," said one of the men. "But we all felt that Frank was guilty not only beyond a reasonable doubt, but beyond almost a possible doubt. We all agreed that the evidence was conclusive, and Solicitor Dorsey's theory of the murder was ours."

All the men were warm in their praise for the work of the state's prosecutor. They felt his sincerity, they say, and although they declare that they would have convicted without his brilliant closing argument they do not begrudge time that it took.

"Do you remember when Dorsey finished his argument with 'guilty, guilty, guilty' with pauses between each word?" asked Juror W. F. Medcalf. "The most remarkable thing occurred just then. It was exactly high noon and the chimes on the Catholic church a block away rang out simultaneously, a stroke to each word. We all heard it."

BACK AT WORK.

Deber Townsend was among the few jurors who resumed work Tuesday morning. He is a teller at the Central Bank and Trust corporation and was at the window as usual Tuesday morning. He voiced the sentiment of the whole, twelve men probably when he praised the sheriff's corps of deputies which has had the jury in charge.

"There was nothing lacking for our comfort," he said. "We felt that everything was being done for us that reasonably could be. And we didn't have such a bad time together. We got so well acquainted that we are just like brothers now."

The deputies who have had in their care the jury return the compliment. They are a unit in declaring that the jury was the most obedient, orderly and generally satisfactory bunch of talesmen they have ever dealt with.

Card playing, reading, singing and piano playing occupied the evenings of

WILSON POSTPONES READING MESSAGE UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Message From Mexico This Morning Asks President to Delay Twenty-Four Hours, Conference Follows

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—President Wilson will not deliver his message on Mexico to congress today. That event has been deferred at the request of Foreign Minister Gamboa, of Mexico, Gamboa's request having the support of John Lind, special envoy of the president at the Mexican capital.

The request was that the message be put off till tomorrow to enable the authorities at the City of Mexico to give consideration to some further suggestions of Mr. Lind. The president, of course, complied, and while it was stated that he expected to deliver the message tomorrow, the language in which this was done left the inference that the president now hopes he will not have to deliver the message at all.

What ground there may be for that hope was not revealed at the White House. The president contented himself with having Secretary Tumulty make the simple announcement that the message had been deferred, but without detailed explanation as to what he expected might happen.

The White House swarmed with newspaper men and members of the senate and house. The members of the press especially were insistent that the message be given out for publication at once so the papers could have it in time to print this afternoon. It was to be the big story of the day, this presentation of the Mexican case to congress by the president in person. The people would expect to read it in full and time was getting short. Secretary Tumulty, visibly embarrassed, said he realized it, but the message still was tied up. But he told everybody to wait. The president might have an announcement to make.

TUMULTYE ANNOUNCEMENT.

Presently in the presence of a room full of people Secretary Tumulty read the following announcement:

"Last night about midnight, after the conference between the president and the foreign relations committee of the two houses of congress, a dispatch came from Mexico City in which Mr. Lind united with Senor Gamboa in urging the president to postpone his address to the congress until Wednesday in order to afford the authorities at Mexico City opportunity for further consideration of the proposals of the United States in view of certain supplementary suggestions by Mr. Lind. The president of course consented and is expecting to address the congress at 1 p. m. on Wednesday.

The news flashed through congress in a few minutes and at once the situation grew tense. Members realized that the president perhaps was on the verge of a great personal and moral victory, and the unusual business of congress was practically forgotten while members discussed the new Wilson treatment of a cold douche of world wide sentiment for Latin-American revolutions.

The house end of the capitol was congested with a great crowd of people early this morning. They filled the cor-

SHOT AT FIFTY TIMES, NEGRO IS YET ALIVE

Thirty-five Men Take Prisoner From Hospital and Try to Lynch Him

(By Associated Press.)

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 26.—This morning about 2 o'clock a crowd composed of 35 men went to the Good Samaritan hospital and took Joe McNeely, the negro who shot and probably fatally wounded Policeman L. L. Wilson here Friday, and made an attempt to lynch him.

The negro was taken from an upstairs ward, dropped down the steps out into the street, where the crowd began shooting at him. Thinking they had killed him they dispersed, but when a call was sent in to police headquarters and officers arrived it was found that the negro was still alive.

He was brought to the police station and is not expected to live. The negro was badly wounded at the time he shot the policeman. It is said that fully fifty shots were fired by the crowd.

The men quickly dispersed after the shooting and everything is now quiet. None of the members of the crowd were recognized and so quietly did they organize that even the officers on guard at the hospital were not aware of anything out of the ordinary until they appeared at the hospital.

ANNAPOLIS PROVIDES MILK FOR THE MIDDIES

Naval Academy Is Presented With Large Dairy Farm by Government

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Milk for the "middies" now is assured for the United States Naval academy through the selection of a 760-acre dairy farm only a few miles from the historic buildings at Annapolis, Md. It was announced today that a subcommittee of the house naval affairs committee had selected the farm and the stock. The place will be in operation within a few weeks.

"Know a cow from a capstan?" Repetted a member of the sub committee in reply to a naval affairs member. "Sure we did. There were several of us who had navigated and plowed in the middle west and south, and we recognized the milk-bearing craft."

Anyway, the officials declared an excellent herd of cows had been acquired and the middshipmen hereafter will not have to depend on the market for their milk supply.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS MAY BE SUPPORTED BY PUPILS

Government Inspector Outlines Plan Used Successfully in Michigan School

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Public schools virtually may be made self-supporting through intelligent direction of the labor of the pupils, is the discovery made by the United States bureau of education, from a report by its inspector, P. W. Feght, on the plans adopted in the schools of Ishpeming, Mich. As a result of the system in force there, the town school properties not only have been kept in repair by student labor, "during the past six years," says Mr. Feght, in his report, "high school students from the manual training department have been employed to repair the various city school buildings. During one summer $3,000 was thus paid for student labor. The boys have repaired roofs, laid cement floors, built brick walls and installed plumbing fixtures. A gymnasium to be erected by the boys is from plans drawn by seniors in the high school. Taxes paid for the support of the school system thus are shown to find their way back to the pockets of the taxpayers. In addition, the report declares, co-operative farming has proved to be not only a source of profit for public school students, but has also served to keep growing boys from "drifting" and to instil in them a love for agriculture.

Wilson Allows Dog In Yellowstone on Plea of Mistress

(By Associated Press.)

PARSONS, Kan., Aug. 26.—A Kansas girl and her pet dog, with the assistance of President Wilson, have broken down the strict rule against dogs being permitted in Yellowstone Park.

Miss Ethel Provost, of Parsons, today received an announcement from the department of the interior that her request to take her dog, "Fanny," into the park had been granted.

The girl recently wrote to President Wilson. "My father is soon to take the management of a hotel in Yellowstone National Park. We have been informed that no dogs are allowed in the park confines. Mr. President, I am eighteen years old and our old dog Fanny is the same age. We have never been separated and I cannot bear the thought of leaving her behind. She is very old for a dog and would not be able to harm any of the park animals."

President Wilson replied that he would see what could be done.

The navy department also made public an official report from Commander L. C. AMERICAN IN ATTEMPT TO SWIM THE CHANNEL

A Stunt Accomplished Only Twice Is Tried Tuesday by Henry G. Sullivan

(By Associated Press.)

DOVER, England, Aug. 26.—Henry G. Sullivan, an American long distance swimmer, left here this morning in an attempt to swim the English channel.

Sullivan expected to have slack water during the first hour's swim, which he considered should take him clear of the much dreaded Goodwin sands, after which he would have the advantage of the tide.

The feat of swimming the channel has been accomplished only twice, by Captain Matthew Webb in 1875 and by William T. Burgess in 1911. Webb was an Englishman and Burgess a naturalized Frenchman.

GOMEZ DEMONSTRATES HIS MILITARY STRENGTH

Castro's Son and Other Supporters "Review" Their Enemy's Troops

CARACAS, Aug. 26.—The parade with which President Gomez demonstrated his military strength at Maracay on Saturday was an unusual spectacle. A group of twenty political prisoners representing the Castro revolution, were marched into Maracay from Tapatapa with 6,000 loyal soldiers as their escort. President Gomez hoped to show by the demonstration how futile were seditious plots.

Just outside the city the troops halted the prisoners and with their guard they slowly passed between a mile long line of artillery. Arriving at the plaza in front of General Gomez's residence, they were forced to stand for an hour in the hot sun while the government troops deployed past. President Gomez looking on from a window of his residence.

The prisoners included Simon Bello, General Castro's brother-in-law; Manual Torres, tall and defiant, the natural son of General Castro; Felix De La Rosa Porez, a member of congress under General Castro, and General Porfirio Sierralts, a tall, grizzled Castro warrior.

COUNTERFEITERS AT WORK TRAILED BY GOVERNMENT

Appearance of Two Phony Bills Startles Secret Service Into Action

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Two counterfeit $10 national bank notes have made their appearance and the secret service force of the government is hot on the trail of the counterfeiters. One bill is accredited to the First National bank of Chicago and the other purports to have been issued by the Farmers and Merchants National bank of Los Angeles, Cal.

The treasury department in a statement issued today says: "The figures in the bank and treasury numbers are poorly formed and out of alignment. The lathe work is very good. The back of the bills is a darker shade of green than the genuine. The paper feels thick and harsh."

The bills, the officials say, are formed of two pieces of paper between which silk threads are distributed. The officials add that "if the plate printed, these bills could be very deceptive."

NO GOVERNMENT MONEY FOR SAVANNAH BANK

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 26.—There was some surprise in Savannah when it became known that the Merchants' National bank was not to get any of the money send south by the treasury department. It was learned in this connection that the bank has not been a government depository since the government insisted upon the payment of small interest on deposits.

Negroes Fight Duel To Death in Front Of African Church

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GLASSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 26.—About 9:15 o'clock Sunday night, a negro named Evans shot and killed another negro named Longino, who it is said, lived in Campbell county. Six pistol shots were fired, two of which, it is said struck Longino, killing him almost instantly.

The alleged slayer is at large. The difficulty occurred at the African Methodist church, just at the close of the service. The tragedy had its beginning, it is said, at a ball game Saturday afternoon. Rumor says that two other negroes took part in the dueling, one of whom is now in jail.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—An instance of alleged police graft was uncovered within headquarters yesterday when George D. Hawthorne, an assistant bookkeeper to the police pension bureau, was arrested at his desk on a charge of extortion.

The complaint was made by George Carrouggis, a retired policeman, who had entered into correspondence with the pension bureau in an effort to get a pension increased. He complained to Police Commissioner Waldo that Hawthorne told him that his request would be granted for a "consideration." Hawthorne is charged specifically with having accepted a bribe of $150."

ROME BAPTISTS CALL CHARLOTTE, N. C., PASTOR

Rev. W. L. Walker Urged to Become Successor to Late Dr. R. B. Headden

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., Aug. 26.—The First Baptist church of Rome has issued a call to Rev. W. L. Walker, of Charlotte, N. C. The call was practically unanimous, and it is believed Mr. Walker will accept. He is well known in Rome, and conducted a series of meetings here about three years ago and preached here last month.

The First Baptist church is one of the largest of its denomination in the south. It was for thirty years under the pastorate of the late Rev. Dr. R. B. Headden, who resigned shortly before his death. The pulpit has been vacant since last April, and was held by the pastor emeritus, Dr. Headden, until his death, pending the calling of a regular pastor.

Negro Falls From Gallery When Hero And Villian Fight

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 26.—During an intense scene in a melodrama at a local theater last night Williard Dudley, a negro, had an epileptic fit in the gallery and plunged head-first, into the pit.

The negro's head struck the brass rail around a tier of boxes and bounced off onto the head of a ten-year old girl, Marie Rodriguez. Both were taken from the theatre unconscious. A bucket of water dashed into the negro's face revived him. He was unhurt. The girl was hurried to a hospital, but she too was found to have escaped serious injury.

When the negro took his flight to the pit the villain in the play was preparing to shoot the hero. In the excitement he swerved and one of the woman members of the company was badly burned about the cheeks from the explosion.

GRAND JURY PROPOSES TO GET TAX DEFAULTERS

Butts County Tax Returns Have Decreased Greatly Since 1878

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

JACKSON, Ga., Aug. 26.—The grand jury that has just adjourned made some pertinent recommendations as to tax defaulters and the continued decrease in the acreage of land.

It was shown that since 1878, when about 124,000 acres of land was returned, there has been a decrease until now the total number of acres returned for taxation is about 112,000.

This year's digest shows an increase over the number of acres returned last year, however, and the nice gain in tax values in Butts this year was the subject of comment by the grand jury. The grand jury suggested that land be returned to the tax receiver by lot number.

NEWT LEE LEAVES TOWER, STARTS SEARCH FOR JOB

Was Released Tuesday Morning by Order of Judge Roan at Instance of Dorsey

Newt Lee, the negro night watchman who discovered the body of Mary Phagan in the basement of the National Pencil factory, was released from the Fulton county jail Tuesday morning at 11:10 o'clock, by order of Judge L. S. Roan.

Newt carried in his hand as he left the jail a couple of baskets, containing old clothes and one thing and another. He directed his footsteps toward police headquarters, where he said he "had some business to attend to."

To the reporters he said: "No, sir, white folks, I ain't got no home I reckon, and maybe got no wife by this time. I don't know where I'm goin', 'cept I'm goin' to get me a job as soon as I can find one. Is I glad to get out? I shore is, white folks. But I feel sorter weak from settin' around in jail so long and doin' nothin'."

It turned out at police station that Newt's business consisted in getting some personal effects he left there when he was transferred from police station to the jail.

Newt was placed in custody ever since 3 o'clock Sunday morning, April 27. It was he who discovered the body of Mary Phagan in the factory basement and who notified the police. At first suspicion was directed toward Lee, and the coroner's jury ordered him held for investigation by the grand jury.

The grand jury did not think enough of the evidence against Lee to indict him, but agreed with Solicitor Dorsey that he should be held in jail as a material witness against Leo M. Frank.

Newt Lee was kept on the witness stand for ralmost two days by Attorney Rosser, who plied him with question after question, sometimes coaxing him and other times scolding him. The negro held his own in a wonderful manner. He could not be rattled or shaken.

Frank was found guilty Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning Solicitor Dorsey petitioned Judge Roan for an order releasing Newt Lee. The solicitor stated in his petition that his office and the city detectives had made a diligent search and had failed to find anything to connect Newt Lee with Mary Phagan's murder.

NO RECORD SHOOTING AT CAMP PERRY ON TUESDAY

Special Prizes Awarded to Men Who Had High Scores in Individual Match

CAMP PERRY, Aug. 26.—Today and Wednesday having been set aside for practice work, so as to give the state and service teams opportunity to practice for the national team match on Thursday there was no shooting for records today.

Special prizes today were awarded the following men who had high scores in the national individual match Monday:

Second Lieutenant F. P. Jacobs, United States infantry, for a possible score of 100 in the skirmish run; Second Lieutenant H. A. Riley, United States infantry, for a score of 698; Captain C. W. Gerdes, Pennsylvania, for a perfect score of 50 in the rapid fire line.

BASS SCORES WOMAN'S "FASHIONS AND FOLLIES"

Evangelist J. M. Bass, now conducting a revival at Grace Methodist church, preached a special sermon to women Tuesday afternoon. He berated "the fashions and follies of women" in his address entitled the "Modern Woman." He declared most women possessed splendid qualities for doing good and leading others in the right path, but that many of them throw away all opportunities to do good, lured by fashion and folly.

At the services Monday night fifteen conversions were gained. Tuesday morning a special service for mothers was held at which the inmates of the Old Ladies Home were present. On Tuesday evening a church workers class will be organized by O. W. Stapleton, leader of the chorus.

Bankruptcy Petitions

Three small voluntary petitions in bankruptcy were filed on Monday. William I. Walker, an insurance agency, listed liabilities of $150, with no assets. Fred J. Adams, a flagman, had liabilities of $611 and assets of $100; and Thomas A. Black, a brakeman, had liabilities of $1,626 and assets of $543.

Frank Trial Cost County Of Fulton Nearly $6,000; Jurors Got Only $2 a Day

Trial Was Costliest Criminal Litigation In History of Fulton County—Defense Paid Out Much More Money Than Prosecution.

The trial of Leo M. Frank has cost the county of Fulton, according to the rough estimates made up Tuesday by Sheriff Wheeler Mangum and Deputy George Broadnax, approximately $160 per day, or $4,640 for the entire trial, exclusive of the fees to expert witnesses and the incidental expenses of the solicitor general.

The jurors received $2 per day for twenty-nine days and the cost of boarding each man was $3 per day, making the total cost of the jury $1,740 for the entire trial.

To care for the jury and to guard the doors against the rushes of the crowds and for similar needs, it took twenty bailiffs during the Frank trial and they are paid at the rate of $2 per day. The bailiffs worked only twenty-five days, however, so it will take only $1,000 to pay them.

Other costs of the trial, like the salary of the judge, who gets $2,000 per year for presiding over the criminal court; the salary of the court stenographer, etc. are fixed charges that would be paid whether court was in session or not.

While the solicitor general himself will get no extra fees for trying the sensational murder case, by agreement with the board of county commissioners, he has been allowed an expense fund. Dr. H. F. Harris, of the state board of health, one of the principal witnesses for the state, together with the other physicians, who appeared as expert witnesses, will probably be paid by the county, but the amount of their bills is not yet known.

These fees, which can not no whe estimated, will bring the total cost of the south's longest murder trial up to probably $6,000. The defense of Leo M. Frank has probably been much more costly than his prosecution. One item alone, which the defense will pay is a stenographer's bill of approximately $2,700.

The stenographic record in the case shows 1,080,000 words, which at the usual rate of 25 cetns per hundred words, would make approximately $2,700.

Court attaches declared that the expense of the Frank trial more than doubles the expense of any other criminal litigation in the history of the county.

Rome's "Wild Man" Is Lodged in Jail On Vagrancy Charge

ROME, Ga., Aug. 26.—A "wild man," black in color and giving the name of Frank Evans, is an occupant of the Floyd county jail, having been arrested by Sheriff W. G. Dunehoo upon the complaint of residents of the village of Chambers in Floyd county.

The charge against the "wild man" is prosaic, being merely vagrancy. The negro has been living in the woods for the past few weeks, and has greatly excited and alarmed the community by his queer actions. He has been seen many times wandering through the woods, and it is believed that he is either demented or the victim of a peculiar malady.

MOTHER FINDS FRANK UNBROKEN BY VERDICT

Emil Selig Also Visits Him. Prisoner Slept Well, Jailers Say

Emil Selig, father-in-law of Leo M. Frank, was the first person to call on the convicted man at the jail Tuesday morning. Accompanied by a friend, he arrived about 8 o'clock with breakfast for the prisoner.

Mrs. Rae Frank, the prisoner's mother, called on him soon after, also accompanied by a friend of the family.

It was stated at the jail that Frank slept soundly Monday night, apparently unroubled by the verdict of guilty which had been returned against him late in the afternoon.

Except for the emotion he betrayed when they told him of his conviction, Frank's manner is the same he exhibited throughout the trial.

CENSUS DIRECTOR HARRIS PROVED FARMERS' FRIEND

Persuaded McAdoo to Give Indirectly Many Deposits to Country Banks

That the farmers and country bankers of the south have a avluable friend at Washington in the person of the new director of the United States census, Hon. W. J. Harris, of Atlanta, has just been shown in a striking way.

When the national treasury decided to send money to the south to help move the cotton crop, Director Harris, whose life in Georgia made him intimately familiar with southern conditions, called on Treasurer McAdoo and urged that the banks in the smaller towns be supplied with a good share of the funds. Director Harris took along with him a list of the towns and villages in Georgia and other cotton states, showing the population of each. The census department not only furnished the treasury that information, but it also had statistics galore showing the amount of cotton ginned and handled in each little community.

Treasurer McAdoo assured Director Harris that the money would be shipped to the banks in the larger cities with the distinct understanding that they must let the country banks have all the money needed to supply their wants. Director Harris had both argument and statistics in hand to prove the reasonableness of his point. A thing that stood him in good stead was the knowledge he had gained all over the state in handling for several years the activities of several hundred agents of the fire insurance company of which he is president.

One million and eight hundred thousand dollars will be distributed among the banks of Georgia alone. The importance of his distribution is tremendous and the administration has been highly commended on all sides.

Director Harris, who is now in Atlanta, will return to Washington Tuesday. While in Georgia he paid a flying visit to Rome and Cedartown. He is in the best of health and was kept busy while in Atlanta shaking hands with his hundreds of friends.

ROAD WOULD ISSUE $2,562,00 BONDS

Brinson Railway Company, Through Attorney, Asks Permission of Commission

Through its attorney, R. M. Hitch, the Brinson Railway company made application to the railroad commission Tuesday to issue $2,562,000 worth of bonds.

Of this amount $1,000,000 will be used to refund bonds now out, and the remainder of the issue will be used for collateral to secure money for paying debts and for further construction work.

General Manager R. Morgan and Secretary A. B. Baker, of the railroad, attended the meeting of the commission.

No action was taken on the application of the railroad, the matter being held for further consideration.

Other business matters were taken up also at the meeting Tuesday.

GEORGE E. KING IS ILL AT FRENCH HOSPITAL

President of King Hardware Company, Atlanta, Taken to Neuilly Sanitarium

(Special Cable to The Journal.)

PARIS, France, Aug. 26.—George E. King, of Atlanta, Ga., is seriously ill with a complication of diseases at the American hospital at Neuilly.

He arrived Wednesday from Venice, where he was ill three weeks. It was thought the change of atmosphere and treatment at Neuilly would aid his recovery, but he has not rallied and his condition is now alarming.

His wife, three daughters and a son-in-law are with him, and other relatives in America have been summoned by cable.

According to a cablegram received Saturday at the office of the King Hardware company here, George E. King president, left that day for home, ill health causing him to cut shoet his trip several weeks. He is accompanied by his family and is now thought to be on one of the fast passenger boats between New York and Havre.

Chief Jentzen Looks Like a Stranger Now

For a while Tuesday it looked as though the city would have to get a new chief of the sanitary department. Nobody could find Chief John Jentzen. There was a man at his desk, but everybody who wen in to confer with hief Jentzen halted when he saw the "stranger" at the desk, and went right out again.

He was a heavy-set man, and slightly resembled the chief, but the resemblance was not enough to convince the habitues of the city hall that the man had any right at Chief Jentzen's desk.

Nevertheless it was Chief Jentzen himself. He had shaved off the black mustache that usually adorns his upper llp, and the effect was so startling that even his best friends failed to recognize him at first glance.

SAVANAH COPS FLUSH ALLEGED GAMBLING DENS

Citizens Thought They Were All Gone, but They Seem to Turn Up Again

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 26.—Savannahians got a surprise on Saturday night last when the populace woke up to the fact that there was gambling going on in the city.

Six years ago there was a decided stand taken against gambling houses and it was understood that they had all been run out. But the police flushed two alleged "joints" Saturday night and yesterday those who had been caught in one of them were fined.

The proprietor of the other, E. A. Massart, known to the police of old, had his case continued and it is to come up for another hearing probably during the day in police court.

WHY NOT GET A GUARANTEE WHEN YOU BUY LIVER MEDICINE?

Every Article of Merit that is Sold These Days is Guaranteed—No Guarantee Often Means No Quality.

There is very little excuse for any person to claim that he has been "stung" on a purchase. Fifty years ago the buyers had to look out, for to-day it is unusual to find a merchant who will not return the money for any article that has proved unsatisfactory.

An excellent example of this tendency for fair dealing is shown by the cleancut guarantee that all drug stores are willing to give on Dodson's Liver Tone.

Any person who pays 50c for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and does not find it a gentle and most pleasant liver tonic, harmless, but a sure reliever of constipation and to successfully take the place of calomel, can get his money back just as quick as the druggist can get it out of the money drawer.

Dodson's Liver Tone is rapidly taking the place of calomel. It is absolutely harmless, sure in its action and causes no restriction of habit or diet. No wonder the drug people are glad to guarantee it, while other remedies that imitate the claims of Dodson's Liver Tone are not guaranteed at all.

New Fall Suits $25

Women Passing Through Atlanta Should See These Striking Styles

The detail merely hints of what you will find:

Styles—Cutaway, blouse and straight coats. Draped and straight skirts—many with the newest knee drapery. Coats have regulation and the novel drop shoulders.
Materials—Empress; Poplin; Cords; French Storm and Diagonal Serges; Eponge; plain and two-tone Whipcords; Cheviots; Novelties. Messaline silk linings; silk shields.
Colors—Chiefly in the staple black and blues, with a sprinkling of other colors.

U. S. OVERCHARGED ON ALL AMMUNITION

Would Enlarge Arsenal So That Exorbitant Prices Would Not Be Paid

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26.—Overcharges for army ammunition "unbelievable to the average citizen," according to Representative Tavenner, of Illinois, inspired him today to introduce a bill providing for an appropriation of $1,030,000 for the enlargement of the arsenal at Rock Island, Ill. The improvement would include an extension of the plants for the manufacture of cartridges and field artillery ammunition.

According to Mr. Tavenner, the government is paying exorbitant prices for ammunitions for war. He declared it paid approximately $25 for shrapnel shells for the use of field guns when it had been demonstrated that the Frankford arsenal at Philadelphia could turn them out for $12.52.

He also asserted that the same arsenal turned out ball cartridges for the service rifles at a cost of less than $30 a thousand, while private contractors were charging the government something over $28 for the same supplies.

FRANK SENTENCED TO HANG ON OCTOBER 10

said Judge Roan, "on yesterday afternoon rendered a verdict finding you guilty of murder. It is now my duty as the presiding judge of this court to pass the sentence of the law upon you for that offense. Before I pass that sentence, have you anything to say, wherefore it should not be passed?

Frank speaking calmly, and coolly in a voice which reached to every portion of the court room said:

"I say now, as I have always said, that I am innocent. Further than that my case is in the hands of my counsel."

"Mr. Frank," said the court, "I have tried to see that you had a fair trial for the offense for which you have been indicted. I have the consciousness of knowing that I have made every effort, as the law requires me to do, to see that your trial was fair. Your counsel has notified me that a motion for a new trial will be filed in due order, and it will be duly heard. It is now my duty to pronounce sentence upon you."

Judge Roan then read the formal words ordering the prisoner to be executed on October 10, less than a week after the date set for the hearing of the arguments for a new trial.

Attorney Arnold then said: "Your honor, we now file our motion for a new trial, which I understand stays the sentence until it has been decided."

While Mr. Arnold was still talking to the court Frank turned around with his friends and the sheriff left the room.

Frank refused to add to the statement made in the court when seen by reporters.

FRANK RETURNS TO TOWER.

Frank arrived at the jail at 10:45 o'clock, returning from the court after hearing the sentence of death. In the automobile with him, besides the two deputies, were several friends, among them being Herbert Haas, one of his lawyers.

In an automobile following, arrived Mrs. Leo M. Frank, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Suttles.

Frank's friends went on ahead into the jail, and Frank waited in the hallway for his wife. She entered and put her arms around him and kissed him, smiling brightly. With one arm around him, she walked to the inner door of the jail, talking and smiling, and entered there with him, the entire party going up to Frank's cell.

At the cell waited the mother of the condemned man, Mrs. Rae Frank, and his fatheri-n-law, Emil Selig.

After greeting each in her son in his cell at the jail three hours and fifteen minutes Tuesday morning Mrs. Rae Frank, of Brooklyn, left the tower, accompanied by Rabbi David Marx, at 12:45.

Mrs. Frank, the condemned man's wife, and Emil Selig, his father-in-law, who came to the jail at 8:45 a. m., remained behind with the prisoner.

MRS. FRANK BREAKS DOWN.

Mrs. Leo M. Frank was with her husband in the Tower when news of the verdict was brought to him. He had waived his presence in the court room and she had chosen to remain at his side. Rabbi David Marx and Dr. H. J. Rosenberg, the family physician, told the young factory superintendent his fate. Mrs. Frank broke down and sobbed in her husband's arms. She was on the verge of unconsciousness, it is reported. Frank, however, took the news without exhibiting feeling. He appeared incredulous at first, it is said, and then resumed the impassiveness which he has maintained for four months.

"Even the jury was influenced by mob law," was his comment. As soon as his wife recovered sufficiently, Frank sent her home in care of friends.

A few minutes later he said to Dr. R. Wildauer, a close personal friend who was present when the news was brought: "I'm as innocent today as I was one year ago."

The two family friends had intended to wait until his wife left the jail before telling him, but, fearing that the news might be imparted in some other way they finally ascended the stairs of the jail and broke the message.

Solicitor General Dorsey had no comment to make on the case Tuesday morning. The defense attorneys, further than to admit they were preparing a motion for a new trial and fight the verdict in higher courts, would say nothing. Each is planning to take a short vacation, it is said.

The jury reached their verdict within two hours after Frank's life had been placed in their hands. On the first ballot the vote was ten for conviction, one blank and one doubtful. The second ballot was taken just one hour later and resulted in a unanimous vote for conviction.

When they agreed they notified Sheriff Mangum, who immediately endeavored to notify the lawyers of the defenes, Solicitor Dorsey, Attorney Hooper and Judge Roan. The two latter were at the courtroom in less than half an hour. The solicitor did not arrive until fifteen minutes later. The acceptance of the verdict was delayed on the court's order until he arrived.

COURT ROOM CLEARED.

The courtroom was crowded with people from the time the jury retired until Judge Roan was ready to receive the verdict. Fearing a demonstration, however, the room was ordered cleared of spectators and only a few friends of Frank, the attorneys and newspaper men were present. A crowd estimated at two thousand remained on the streets in the vicinity of the building when the spectators were expelled and within ten seconds after Foreman Winburn read "We find the defendant guilty as charged," they received the news and cheered wildly. The din attracted others and the throng doubled in less than five minutes. A squad of mounted policemen, a score of patrolmen and a dozen deputies preserved order, keeping the sidewalks open.

Three thousand people cheered the solicitor when he left the courtroom ten minutes later. Several stalwart supporters lifted him above the head of the multitude and carried him across the street to his office. When he returned to the sidewalk to get in an automobile to go home he was met with renewed applause. He lifted his hat and bowed. Then he shook hands with a dozen or more, waved his hat again to those farther away and was driven off up Pryor street.

In the courtroom the solicitor was on the verge of tears. He blamed it on his nerves and the sympathy for the wife and mother of the man he prosecuted. As he was polling the jury his eyes became moist and his voice trembled.

Neither Attorney Rosser or Arnold was present when the verdict was returned.

Mrs. Rae Frank, the young superintendent's mother, was at the home of the family in East Georgia avenue. It is said that she had gone there to prepare the house for her son's homecoming in the event of his release. She was keenly disappointed when friends drove up in automobiles and imparted the news to her. She was almost as impassive as her son, under the shock, though it is said.

JURORS RECEIVED $58 EACH.

The jurymen, for their month's work received $58 each and the thanks of the court. During the long trial they have suffered more, probably than anybody except the lawyers. They listened to the tale of horror seven hours a day, were cut off from all communication with the outside world and slept in hot hotel rooms. They all appeared relieved when they walked out from the court house Monday afternoon and separated to go to their various homes.

"I guess I can find the way alone," one of them remarked.

What went on behind the locked doors of the jury room may never be known to the public. Before the twelve men filed into court with their verdict they agreed never to expose the procedure. It is not known who the single juror who voted against the death penalty on the first ballot is.

Just before the verdict had been read the jury was thanked by Judge Roan. He said: "This has been the longest trial I have ever participated in, and I dare say the longest you ever have or ever will. Thanking you for your long and faithful service and arduous hours the court now stands adjourned. The state will furnish your script. Let's see, how many days?" Two members of the jury answered: "Twenty-nine days."

The judge then instructed the sheriff to provide each of the twelve men with warrants calling for $58 each.

Following this the men remained in their seats for a few moments while several flashlights were taken.

"As soon as the judge finished his charge to the jury I knew what the verdict was going to be," said Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of Mary Phagan. "I felt easier after the case went to the jury than I have at any time since Mary was killed."

When the jury retired, Mrs. Coleman left the court room and repaired to the courtroom in Lindsey street. There, with her living daughter and a few friends she awaited the news of the outcome. Mr. Coleman informed her of the decision half an hour after the verdict was read. She exhibited feeling, but did not break down completely.

CONLEY IS SILENT.

James Conley, negro sweeper, who testified to being the accomplice of Frank after the fact of the murder, is quartered in the Tower on another floor from his former superintendent. He probably will receive a short sentence in the penitentiary for his part in the murder.

Conley had nothing to say Tuesday morning. He is the same quick-talking negro who withstood more than two days of Luther Z. Rosser's gruelling cross-examination. He seems contented with the decision of the jury, although it is said that he expects much more severe punishment for his own part in the crime than will actually be dealt out to him.

Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, is sorry his former superintendent has been found guilty. "I'm sorry. I sure is sorry," mumbled old Newt in his cell directly above Frank's, when the news of the decision was brought him Monday night. Lee will be liberated at once.

Old Pilot of Hell Gate Weds Girl He Met Years Ago in Thomasville, Ga.

After Guiding 15,000 Vessels Safely Through Hell Gate, George Horton, Aged 86 Years, Launches Out Into the Seas of Matrimony

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—With a record of nearly sixty years as a pilot through Hell Gate, during which he took over 15,000 vessels safely through that tortuous channel, George W. Horton, at the age of 86 years, launched into the matrimonial seas. In September, 1912, he was severely married in Canada to Miss Alice Muzzey McCaslin, of Painesville, Ohio.

The fact of his marriage became public with the news that at White Plains yesterday Supreme Justice Mills appointed a commission to inquire into the aged pilot's sanity. The petitioner in the action is Mrs. Jane Ann Dickie, a daughter, who alleges that he owes her $40,000.

Horton has replied in denial of the statements made by his daughter. In telling of his love affair he says he met Miss McCaslin in Thomasville, Ga., eleven years ago when he first proposed marriage. She refused, but he told her to let him know if she changed her mind and she did so after waiting ten years."

Mrs. Frank Too Late to Hear Sentence

Mrs. Lucile Frank, who has stood by her husband faithfully, never missing a session of his long trial, rushed from her East Georgia avenue home in an automible Tuesday when she learned that he was to be sentenced.

She arrived at the tower after he left for the criminal court building, and quickly followed after him.

Mrs. Frank was just a minute too late, however, to be with her friend when the court read his death sentence.

Mrs. Frank's car drove up to the entrance of the Trower building just as Frank was crossing the sheriff's car for the return trip to the tower.

Mrs. Frank, who have gained her composure since hearing of the jury's verdict, smiled faintly at her husband, and followed his machine back to the jail. She spent the morninng with him.

Rabbi Marx Stunned By Verdict of Jury

Rabbi David Marx, who has been with Leo M. Frank every day during the trial, was stunned by the news of the jury's verdict.

Leo Frank is a member of Rabbi Marx's congregation. In charity, orphans' home and other work they have been prominent in close contact. Dr. Marx had been granted a leave of absence by his congregation and was planning a trip to Europe. When Frank was arrested he gave up the trip and stood by the young man, visiting him regularly in the jail and sitting near him throughout the trial.

Detectives Vindicated, Says Newport Lanford

Newport Lanford, chief of the detective branch of the police department, considers the verdict in the Frank trial a complete vindication of the detectives from the criticisms directed against them on account of their methods in handling the case.

"I am not in the least surprised at the verdict," says he, "and I don't think any of my men are. Frank was given one of the fairest trials it has ever been my lot to figure in. A body of twelve honorable gentlemen have found him guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan. I am of the opinion that nearly everyone familiar with the case believes him guilty.

"The detectives have worked very hard on the case and have been untiring in their efforts to find the truth regarding the crime. We have been severely criticised by a few persons, most of whom are unfamiliar with the case and with police methods of obtaining evidence. I feel that we are vindicated completely by the verdict of the jury."

SENATE COMMITTEE FAVORS BOLLING JONES

Postoffice Committee Reports Favorably on McKee's Successor

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The senate postoffice committee will this afternoon favorably report the nomination of Bolling H Jones, as postmaster at Atlanea, vice Hugh L. McKee, in the event of an executive session.

The nomination was referred yesterday to Senator Hoke Smith, as a subcommittee of the postoffice committee, and he recommended a favorable report this morning.

MANN OBJECTS AND PROBE OF SPEER'S CASE IS POSTPONED

er the resolution had been discussed formally as to the proper procedure, Chairman Clayton and Congressman Bartlett, dean of the Georgia delegation, pleaded with him to allow immediate consideration. He was obstinate, however, and further consideration was laid aside.

Judge Bartlett's speech was the most interesting and significant development in connection with the consideration of the resolution. Bartlett has read the charges *against Speer, and he in*dicated clearly in his remarks that he considers them sufficiently grave to demand a complete inquiry. He did not, however, divulge the nature of the accusation.

The resolution introduced by Chairman Clayton immediately after the house convened contained a long preamble, and concluded as follows:

"Whereas, the charges embodied in such report are supported by exhibits and affidavits, and are of such a grave nature as to warrant further investigation; therefore, be it resolved, that the evidence on the judiciary and is hereby authorized to inquire into and concerning the official conduct of Judge Emory Speer, now judge for the southern and middle districts of Georgia, touching his conduct in regard to the matters set forth in such report, and to inquire whether said Judge has been guilty of any misbehavior for which he should be impeached; and to report to the house of representatives the conclusions of the committee in respect thereto with appropriate recommendations."

Prior to the meeting of the house, a conference of the Georgia delegation was held, and it was decided to postpone formal action with reference to the case pending on the outcome of the Clayton resolution in the house.

BARTLETT'S APPEAL.

Judge Bartlett in appealing for immediate consideration, said, in part:

"I merely want to call the attention of the gentleman to the fact that so far as I can ascertain this investigation grew out of the fact that in the trial of a case in the United States court in Macon, a suitor wrote a letter to *the judge in which he made cer*tain allegations of improper conduct, not only in that case, but in many other cases. That case became celebrated by reason of the fact that the judge had the suitor arraigned before him for contempt, and that contempt case was tried and those charges by the suitor against the judge, not only with reference to that case, but numbers of other cases, became a part of the records of that court, and of course a matter of which the department of justice had cognizance.

"The department of justice was compelled to send another judge and another district attorney to try the case. In this way these matters became known not only to the press and to the public, but spread upon the records of the court. An investigation was made by the department of justice through one *of its special examiners, and that ex*aminer has reported to the department of justice concerning those matters. The report being accompanied by numerous statements of lawyers and prominent citizens.

"Whether those charges should be sustained or not sustained I am not here today to say.

"The charges are most serious.

"They affect the judge in every way. "They affect his capacity to try cases temperamentally. They affect his administration of justice in the court.

"FAVORITISM AND TYRANNY."

"They charge favoritism, despotism, tyranny and oppression.

"I do not know from the testimony or in any other way whether the charges are true or not, but I want to say to my friend from Illinois (Mr. Mann) that he could do this judge no greater harm and no greater injury than by attempting to impede or stop an investigation to ascertain the truth or falsity of these charges.

"It is not for me now to determine or even to express an opinion as to whether the charges are sustained or not, but these things have reached a condition where justice to the people of that district and above all justice to the judge against whom these charges are made, requires and demands an investigation at the hands of this house.

"It should not be necessary for any member of the judiciary or any other member of the house to be compelled to rise in his place and proceed to so hard a measure as to impeach the judge in order to have investigated the truth or falsity of these charges, because *the judge should not be impeach*ed until it shall be at least reasonably certain that he has violated the law and been guilty of some misdemeanor or conduct justifying impeachment.

"But, I repeat that any friend of the judge does him no service, but does him harm, by standing in the way of permitting the broad, clear light of publicity to shine and beat upon his actions and his decisions from the time he entered upon this honorable office down to the present day.

"The people have become restless about judges and there is but one way in which to preserve the honor, the integrity and the supremacy of the law, and that is by compelling judges like all other officials to stand with their actions open to the fullest white light of investigation. (Applause).

"If you do not want to see judges recalled, if you do not want the socialistic disposition of the time to demand that decisions shall be submitted to the test of a popular vote, then you ought to be careful, sure, you ought to be quick to permit charges made by reputable citizens against the conduct of those who wear the ermine to be investigated.

"No judge does himself justice, no judge conserves the honor of the bench who would shield from duty to any friend or acquaintance, stay the fullest investigation of his conduct from the day he donned the ermine until his good name.

"Mr. Speaker, I hope that no gentleman in this house will be so unjust to the people of that district, so unjust to that distinguished judge, as to prevent a speedy, impartial, full, white light investigation of his conduct, so that if he has unjustly accused he shall come forth fully vindicated, freed from suspicion and freed from suspicion of charge, but if, unfortunately, the charges, some of which are most serious, affecting the honor and integrity of the judge, seems to justify it, the people who say they have been tyranized over oppressed and unjustly treated by the judge, will have an opportunity to prove it."

GOVERNORS ASSEMBLE AT COLORADO SPRINGS

Secretary of Interior Franklin K. Lane Meets With Conference

(By Associated Press.)

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Aug. 26.—Former and present executives from twenty-five states gathered here today for the opening of the annual conference of governors. With them at Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, the personal representative of President Wilson, to advise them relative to policies of the federal government.

Colorado's welcome by Governor E. M. Emmons was "further emphasized by Mayor C. L. McKesson, of Colorado Springs. A response by Governor William Spry, of Utah, followed by the appointment of a temporary chairman and a chairman on arrangements, comprised the program for the morning session.

That program of the conference would be extended to include a number of outside subjects appeared certain from the ante-conference discussion among governors who planned to inject topics of state personal interest into the discussions.

Among the governor who desired to talk on personal state topics were Governor George P. Hunt, of Arizona, who would abolish state legislatures and turn state government over to the governor and his cabinet; Governor George H. Hodges, of Kansas, who advocated commission government for states, and Governor Ammons, of Colorado, recognized western leaders in the campaign for state instead of federal control of natural resources.

Governor O'Neal, of Alabama, was expected to present the report of the committee on co-operation this afternoon. It also seemed probable that Secretary Lane would be invited formally to address the conference.

Solicitor Dorsey's Fee May Be Much As $80.50

For Weeks of Work and Grind in Frank Case Solicitor Cannot Get Over $80.50 and May Not Get a Cent More Than $50

For four weeks of work resulting in the conviction of Leo M. Frank on the charge of murdering Mary Phagan, the lawyers for the defense get a fee unknown, the judge and attaches of the court get their regular stipends, each of the purors get $58, and the prosecutor, Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, is supposed to get $30.50.

The solicitor's fee is theoretical. As a matter of fact, he will get nothing from the Frank case for court work or grand jury work; and the fee will go into insolvent costs. If later he convicts some other man, and that man is fined, and if he pays his fine, and if the fine is more than enough to pay the fee in that case—then the unappropriated balance of the fine will go to insolvent costs. So it is possible that some day, if all insolvent costs are paid (and they never are), the solicitor's records might show "paid" opposite the amount of the fee in the Frank case.

The solicitor's fee is fixed by law. In all felony cases it is $30.50. Big case and little case, the fee is the same. Acquittals net nothing, and the cost goes on the insolvent book. Convictions net nothing unless a fine is assessed. To hang a man, or to send him to prison, means no cash for the solicitor in any circuit. He is allowed the privilege of crediting himself with $30.50, to be paid at some future time, perhaps by somebody else. But that is all.

In the event the Frank case goes to the state supreme court, the solicitor will argue it there. And for his argument he will be paid in money $50 by the state of Georgia. The general belief is that Frank's lawyers will carry the case to the supreme court. So it is fairly certain that for his work there, the solicitor will get $50 at least out of the Frank trial.

He may get as much as $80.50 altogether if the insolvent cost also is paid some time.

But that is all he can get.

NEW TRIAL MOTION FOR LEO M. FRANK SET FOR OCTOBER 4

Frank's Attorneys, Messrs. Rosser and Arnold, Moved for New Trial Immediately After Sentence Was Passed

Motion for a new trial was made Tuesday morning by attorneys for Leo M. Frank, and October 4 was set by Judge L. S. Roan as the date for hearing argument from them upon this motion.

Upon that day will begin the second phase in the legal battle which has grown out of the murder of Mary Phagan and the indictment of Leo M. Frank. Although Frank has been convicted and sentenced, the defense will continue its fight in his behalf tnd will center its hopes and its efforts on a new trial.

In seeking a new trial, the chief argument of Frank's attorneys will be directed toward that part of Conley's story in which Frank was charged by the negro sweeper with perversion.

Attorneys for Leo M. Frank Tuesday morning based their motion for a new trial upon four reasons. These are:

First—That the verdict of guilty was contrary to the evidence.

Second—That the verdict was contrary to the law.

Thirdly—That it was contrary to the weight of law.

Fourthly—That the court, after overruling the obection of counsel for the defense, allowed the admission of testimony which was relative to other crimes not charged in the bill of indictment against Frank.

The real motion for a new trial, however, will be filed later in the form of an amendment to the four stated Tuesday morning.

Of the four reasons stated Tuesday morning, the last embodies the chief argument through which the defense will contend for a new trial.

The evidence which Frank's attorneys insist is irrelevant was given by Conley, the negro sweeper, jand was obcted to by them some time after it had been submitted and after the cross-examination of Conley had begun. This part of Conley's testimony was an attack upon Frank' moral character, and charged him with crimes which his attorneys insist are not mentioned in the bill of indictment.

WILSON POSTPONES READING MESSAGE UNTIL WEDNESDAY

riders and the galleries and the demand for admission to hear the president's Mexican speech was phenomenal in its volume. When the news came that the speech had been put off at least for a day there was a wonderful buzzing among the people.

"BLUFFED TO A STANDSTILL."

Rumors of all sorts began to fly and a considerable number hastened out to buy the early editions of the afternoon local papers, fully expecting to read that President Wilson had caused peace in Mexico.

Finally a man who had been in the president's office when Secretary Tumulty's announcement was read appeared. His news caused a renewal of the buzzing.

"What does it mean?" was the question asked by hundreds.

"It means," said the man, "that the situation looks hopeful. Secretary Tumulty said so."

"I guess it means that Wilson has bluffed the greasers to a standstill," remarked on individual, to which there was again general chorus of "you bet he has."

Official announcement was made of the original proposals by the United States presented to Huerta by Mr. Lind. They were:

1—Cessation of hostilities and a definite armistice.

2—An early and free election.

3—Huerta to bind himself not to be a candidate.

4—Agreement by all parties to abide by results of the election.

Upon the proposals, the Huerta government at the last moment asked further time for consideration, and upon certain supplementary suggestions by Mr. Lind, the nature of who is not being divulged here, the request for a postponement was made.

LIND NOT RECALLED.

White House officials positively stated that Mr. Lind had not been recalled from Mexico City and added that if he had left for Vera Cruz it would be for only a short visit. He is expected to return to Mexico City to continue the negotiations.

Preparations at the capitol, hurriedly made for a joint session of the house and senate, were called off.

President Wilson's message, a document of about 4,000 words, was locked up in the White House vaults awaiting the next developments. It is generally understood that the message is very kindly in tone towards Mexico, outlines the American government's

"It Would Have Taken Jury Of Stoics to Have Given Leo Frank a Fair Trial"

So Declare Attorneys Rosser and Arnold in Statement to Public—"The Trial Was a Farce," They Say but Do Not Criticise Judge Roan

Attorneys Luther Z. Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold, counsel for Leo M. Frank, Tuesday morning issued a statement in which they declared that their client had not had a fair trial; that with public sentiment like it was it would have required a jury of stoics or Spartans to have given him a fair trial; that they hoped to see the day when he would get a fair trial; and that the verdict had not shaken their belief in Frank's innocence. Following is the statement:

We deem it not amiss to make a short statement, as the attorneys of Leo M. Frank, to the public.

The trial which has just occurred and which has resulted in Mr. Frank's conviction, was a farce and not in any way a trial. In saying this, we do not make the least criticism of Judge Roan, who presided. Judge Roan i some of the best men in Georgia and is an able and conscientious judge.

The temper of the public mind was such that it invaded the court room and invaded the streets and made itself manifest at every turn the jury made; and it was just as impossible for this jury to escape the effects of this public feeling as if they had been turned loose and had been permitted to mingle with the people.

In doing this we are making no criticism of the jury. They were only men and unconsciously this prejudice rendered any other verdict impossible.

It would have required a jury of stoics, a jury of Spartans to have withstood this situation.

The time ought to come when this man will get a fair trial, and we profoundly believe that it will.

The final judgment of the American people is a fair one. It is sometimes delayed in coming, but it comes.

We entered into this case with the profound conviction of Mr. Frank's innocence. The result has not changed our opinion. Every step of the trial has intensified and fortified our profound conviction of his innocence.

position, expresses generous friendship for the Mexican people, and defines the reasons for insisting upon elections and the elimination of Huerta.

Some of the message is based upon precedent set during the administration of President Hayes, when Porifiro Diaz became president of Mexico.

Until the word from Mexico was received all hope that the Huerta government would recede from its refusal to entertain the suggestions of the United States for peace in Mexico practically had vanished today and President Wilson had prepared to appear before a joint session of both houses of congress at 3 p. m. to read his special message defining the policy of this government in the present situation.

It was the first time since George Washington's day in the White House that a president of the United States had determined to appear personally before congress on a question of foreign policy.

The expression of the American policy follows a long and unusual effort to persuade the de facto authorities in Mexico City to suspend hostilities, convoke a constitutional election and to secure freedom of choice by eliminating the present ruler—Victoriano Huerta.

SUPPORT OF WORLD.

In view of the rejection of those suggestions the United States has not felt compelled to emphasize its ideas by arms but, having obtained the moral support of the civilized world, the American government has decided to pursue a policy of absolute non-interference. From the first it has realized that only two alternatives of policy were, before it—friendly mediation or armed intervention. The one has failed and the other, in the opinion of administration officials, is not called for by any existing emergency.

The United States, therefore, will remain aloof, hoping moral suasion eventually will prevail. Arms will be denied all warring factions, Americans will be assisted to leave danger zones and the United States will patiently await the establishment of a secure, stable, constitutional government before extending recognition.

President Wilson's message—a communication which formally denies recognition to the Huerta government though protesting sincere friendship for the great mass of Mexican people without voice in their government—is essentially a review of the mission of John Lind and his negotiations with the Huerta government.

CITES HAYES COMPARISON.

The message cites as an almost parallel precedent for the action of the administration today the difficulties between President Hayes in 1877 and Porfirio Diaz, who after overthrowing President Lerdo, sought American recognition. Though foreign governments recognized Diaz, the United States waited a year, not only until an election was held, but until it was satisfied that the government thereby set up could guarantee international contracts.

Reference to this precedent led to the belief that while hitherto it has been supposed that immediately after an election held by Huerta recognition would be extended, the likelihood was that United States would not extend the hand of friendship to the existing government or its successor in Mexico for some time.

President Hayes in 1877 ordered General Ord to the border with power to cross into Mexico with American troops to suppress marauding bands who were plundering the property of Americans and retreating across the Rio Grande. On that occasion the federal government had been lax in giving border residents protection, but as soon as troops were ordered south the Diaz government indignantly announced that the entrance of any American soldiers into Mexico would be regarded as an invasion and act of war.

WILSON'S STATEMENT.

The views of President Hayes, as expressed by Secretary Seward to John W. Foster, American minister to Mexico, and from which President Wilson takes precedent for his palicy today, were:

"The government of the United States in its dealings with the Mexican republic has aimed to pursue not merely a just but a generous and friendly course. While earnest to guard and protect the rights of its own citizens and the safety of its own territory, it doesn't seek to intervene in political contests or chances of administration. It is accustomed to accept and recognize the results of a popular choice in Mexico and not to scrutinize closely the regularity or irregularity of the methods by which presidents are inaugurated.

"In the present case it waits before recognizing General Diaz as the president of Mexico until it shall be assured that his election is approved by the Mexican people and that his administration is possessed of stability to endure and of disposition to comply with the rule of international comity in the obligation of treaties.

"Such recognition, it afforded, would imply something more than a formal assent. It would imply a belief that the government so recognized will faithfully execute its duties and observe the spirit of its treaties. The recognition of a president in Mexico has an important moral influence which, as you explained, is appreciated at the capital of that republic.

"It aids to strengthen the power and lengthen the tenure of the incumbent and if, as you say, the example of the United States in that regard is one that other nations are disposed to follow, such recognition would not be without effect—both upon the internal and external peace of Mexico. You justly remark that in fifty years there have been about sixty changes of administration in Mexico and it may be added that those administrations have been longest lived that were most faithful and friendly in the discharge of their treaty obligations to the United States."

The resolution was passed without debate as soon as it came into the senate.

Immediately on assembling the house passed the necessary resolution for a joint session at 1 o'clock tomorrow to hear President Wilson's address.

German Scores America For "Do Nothing Policy"

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—What he calls America's "do nothing policy," is criticized today by Baron Hartmann von Richthofen, formerly secretary of the German embassy at Washington, later charge d'affaires of the German legation at Mexico City and now a member of the richstag, in an article in the Zeitung am Mittag.

The baron demands that speedy steps be taken to establish a permanent government in Mexico.

"This is possible by means of a strict closing of the frontier," he says, "for revolution would be impossible without the importation of arms by filibusters, and Provisional President Huerta would find the necessary funds in Europe to maintain his army if the United States would act even in this negative way.

"If America is unwilling on moral and other grounds to give this support to Provisional President Huerta, the government should announce it openly, but should offer to his successor guarantees for the absolute closing of the frontier to both men and arms."

General Huerta, the writer concludes, probably is patriotic enough to retire under the conditions.

Compares Mexican Situation To Europe and Turkey

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 26.—"The difficulty of the mission of John Lind to Mexico was from the beginning that the American government had nothing to offer Provisional President Huerta if he acceded to its requests," comments the Westminster Gazette in an article on the Mexican situation today. The government organ adds:

"It is easy to smile at the position in which President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan find themselves, but it is no worse than the position in which the European powers have been landed by the refusal of Turkey to respect the treaty of London."

Red Cross Will Aid All Mexican Refugees

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The American Red Cross will aid destitute American refugees from Mexico, arriving at New York, San Francisco, New Orleans, Galveston and San Diego, to get transportation to their homes or friends. Secretary Bryan today named two men at each port to aid in the work.

Rebels Imperil Irrigation In Lower California

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—W. H. Holabird, receiver of the California Development company, who has charge of the Imperial valley irrigation system, left today to watch the situation which developed yesterday with a fight between Mexican federals and insurectos at Sharpe Heading, the intake of the system, south of the international line.

All of the sources of water supply for the irrigation system lie in the Mexican territory of Lower California.

According to dispatches today from Calexico, the insurrectos are encamped at Elisa Butte, at the dead of the volcano lake. This lake is the head of navigation for vessels coming up from the Gulf of California, and the rebels said they expected reinforcements soon from Sonora.

Bryan So Busy He Forgot to Go Home

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The Mexican situation so absorbed the attention of Secretary Bryan that he forgot to go home last night, and while he waited for messages from John Lind he curled up on a couch where he slept until time to go home for breakfast.

Germany Still Friendly In Regard to Mexico

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—The foreign office, in the belief that John Lind had left Mexico City on his return to the United States, made the following comment today on the Mexican situation:

"The German government's attitude in regard to Mexico is unchanged. It still remains friendly and waiting."

And in the Meantime Rebels and Federals Fight

(By Associated Press.)

HERMOSILLO, Sonoa, Mexico, Aug. 26.—Although federal gunboats and land batteries at Guaymas fired thousands of shells at the positions of the investing constitutional forces Sunday and Monday, the rebel losses, according to a telegram received today by Governor Maytorena from General Obregon, numbered only ten killed and twenty wounded.

Obregon, however, has retired to Tres Litos, six kilometres north of Empalme, leaving a small force at Batamotal and hoping to draw the federals from their stronghold to a position where their retreat to Guaymas might be more easily cut off.

Colonel Felipe Dussart reported to Maytorena today that the rebels of Sinaloa had driven the federals from all important points in the state excepting Culiacan, the capital and Mazatlan, the seaport city.

Governor's Son-in-Law Is No Longer in Danger

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Shirley C. Hulse, son-in-law of Lieutenant-Governor Reynolds, of Pennsylvania, and the other Americans at La Boquilla, Mexico, more than a hundred miles south of Chihuhua, are believed to be no longer in danger.

W. W. Freeman, president of the Mexican Northern Light and Power company, has arrived at Chihuahua and informed Consul Letcher that the Mexican federal commander had promised that all Americans would be free from molestation. La Boquilla is in the hands of rebel forces, to which couriers are on their way with demands for protection of Americans. Similar representations have been filed with General Carranza at Durango, present headquarters of the revolutionists.

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Aug. 26.—"I want to get acquainted with the army before I attempt any changes in it," declared Secretary of War Garrison here today when he was asked regarding the department's plans for concentration of the army in fewer posts.

The secretary inspected the service schools and the military prison at Leavenworth.

COTTON MARKET MADE NEW HIGH RECORD FOR SEASON

Market in New York Closed 2 Points Off to 5 Points Up From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Cotton was again active and prices made new high records on a broadening outside demand or renewed covering. Cables were lower and the opening was 2 points lower to 2 points higher, but prices soon firmed under the influence of the covering and demand from spinners. Realizing by old longs was heavy. Offerings, however, were readily absorbed and the market sold 6 to 9 net higher with October contracts touching the 12-cent level.

Stop orders were executed above 12c for October, after which slight reactions occurred during the middle of the morning, but prices firmer up again toward midday on the detailed weather reports, and showed net gains of from 20 to 21 points, with offerings limited.

Estimated receipts today, 30,000 bales.

After opening 2 net unchanged to 21 to 25 points on reports of higher temperatures in the southwest and the need of rain in other sections, market became less active, and prices eased off 10 or 15 points from the best under realizing.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26.—Cotton futures opened steady at a decline of 1 to 5 points on unfavorable cables and offerings from the long side. Later prices were the lowest in the early trading, as the dry weather map caused fresh buying for long account on a large scale. Some short covering was also in evidence. Reports from the western belt were more discouraging than ever, and indicated that the drought was increasing in crop deterioration. Much small crop talk was heard about spinning. At the end of the first half hour of business prices were 6 to 9 points lower than yesterday's close.

Toward the middle of the morning buying became heavy. The forecast of generally fair weather for the western part of the belt caused great nervousness and much covering among shorts, and bulls were in the saddle on the heavy demand. Toward 11 o'clock considerable buying was done on the expectation that the weekly weather report would be bullish. These reports were fully as unfavorable as anticipated and after they were out the market stood 20 to 21 points over yesterday's close. Profit taking on the part of long of record was also in evidence and caused a fairly wide reaction. At noon prices were 6 to 7 points over the last quotations of yesterday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—While Liverpool was disappointing to the bull forces it had little or no effect on the local market, and there was a good demand from the same source as usual on Monday and after the opening, shorts were apparently nervous and a general buying wave followed with very little cotton for sale. The aggressive sellers of yesterday were not among the sellers of today, and the only selling of consequence came from the weekly weather report was the posted which was construed as favorable and the ring crowd sold to anyone who would buy the market took the selling well and higher prices are established for this week, pending the government report which will be issued tomorrow. There has been considerable profit taking today as it is believed by a great many that a reaction is in order.—Anderson.

COTTON GOSSIP

The Times-Democrat says: There was a logical explanation of yesterday's cotton market advance. Nevertheless, at the close many professionals lacked nerve and the belief that frightened shorts had furnished an opportunity for many longs to sell at good figures. The continent was a contract buyer on the large scale. But exporters continued to complain of sack demand for forward delivery, and steamshipmen asserted that forward engagements of space at freight rates for disappointingly small. All session long the contract market reflected great strength, and after New York's close New Orleans climbed several additional points. Rumor had it that the late session buying here assumed more active proportions because Europe and scared local shorts the other side of the ocean, and in the face of the returns, some decidedly unfavorable reports from the belt, on which the bear element has deepened to, in a measure at least, offset the chief cause for the upward trend in the works. These reports caught speculative shorts in a restwome frame of mind because of the general belief that the Government figures on September 2 will be bullish. The market started up and did not stop climbing until the closing gong had put an end to the trading.

Special rains in Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee claim deterioration in Arkansas, Tennessee and Missouri during the month.

The other reports of change, promoting much shedding. Plant generally well fruited and cultivation good, favorable weather has been excellent here and there. Picking in Arkansas has begun. The September 2 Government figures are for a decline in condition of several points from last month in that state, and a good percentage of the Tennessee condition will show some loss from last month, when it was 89.2, but forecasts of 90 per cent have been last year at this time, when it was 75. Missouri has declined considerably from last month's condition of 86.

Forecast:

Arkansas, Oklahoma and West Texas: Tonight and Wednesday, warmer. Light northeast winds on the coast.

East Texas: Tonight and Wednesday fair, warmer. Light winds on the coast.

Georgia: Fair tonight and Wednesday; cooler in north portion.

Louisiana: Fair tonight and Wednesday.

Mississippi: Fair except showers south portion tonight and Wednesday.

Tennessee: Fair and warmer tonight; Wednesday unsettled.

Many shorts in Atlantics, rains in Atlantic coast districts, fair elsewhere, no rains. Indications are for increasing cloudiness western states. Some rains reported in central portion of Oklahoma, likely to cause some precipitation and showers there and also in northern portion of Arkansas shortly. Generally fair central states, showers Atlantic—Gulf coast.

Weekly weather report from Texas bullish.

Wilson and Geer bidding for big blocks at market and offering small lots, nervous and excited.

Monday—Prices crossed 12 cents in a steamy way. It is possible that this advance may measure the end of the rise for the present crop. Some of the leading eastern houses are playing for a reaction, and as yet spot strength has not forced consumers to the market. If futures should general long realizing occur. But with crop, mill and consumption figures that would do only limited food, the yield has probably been reduced to a point that makes 12 cents reasonable of not a cheap price.—Miller & Cotter.

Tuesday—The morning say apparent weakness in Liverpool market was but a momentary condition due to local profit taking. That market reeling with some heavy continental selling with reported large movement of cotton to spot. Another bullish government report may be expected next Tuesday with every prospect of the market showing a still further advance.—Tate.

JOURNAL OF COMMERCE REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Journal of Commerce says: Conditions are very mixed in Arkansas. Many correspondents report that it is too dry and several for the best in years. In these sections the weevil is increasing and the insects are troublesome and shedding is slight. Some report good chances of fruiting to the top and bolls opening rapidly. In other sections the crop is generally plentiful and picking will be general by September 1. Cotton is picking nicely in a few localities. In other sections hot, dry weather is causing premature opening and crop is setting in fast. Reports thus far received, however, would indicate a deterioration of several points from last month's percentage condition was 87.4.

Texas crop is generally in good condition, fruiting well and in a good state of cultivation. Rain is needed, however, in beginning to cause considerable shedding and percentage condition will probably show some loss from last month ago when it was 86.2, but it is considerably better than last year at this time, when it was 75.4. The crop is free from insects and barring disaster, a good yield is indicated.

Missouri—On account of drouth cotton has deteriorated considerably since last month when the percentage condition was 86.6.

SOLICITOR DORSEY GLAD FRANK TRIAL IS OVER

Swamped With Telegrams of Congratulation, Many From Persons Unknown to Him

One of the weariest men in Atlanta Tuesday was Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey.

"I'm mighty tired," said he Tuesday morning, at his home on Sixteenth street. "But I slept very well last night, and I expect to remain at home all day, in bed if I can, unless I am called to court."

But even at home the solicitor was not left undisturbed. His telephone was ringing almost constantly, with inquiries and messages from friends. Until late at night Monday it had rung. The calls came not only from Atlanta, but by long distance from other stations of the telephone company, principally in Georgia. Telegrams from Georgia and other southern states, and even from other states of the union, were read to the solicitor, bringing congratulations. Letters in the mail brought similar expressions. Numbers of friends called in person to talk to him.

The solicitor declared that the large majority of the letters and telegrams and telephone calls came from persons whom he did not know.

An inquiry as to whether he would take a vacation right away elicited a laugh from the solicitor.

"A little rest here today," said he, "and then I get down to business for a few more days and try to make a little money for a living."

Mr. Dorsey's duties will demand his attention until the court term ends, and perhaps for some days thereafter. Then he will be busied by preparation for the next term of court.

ERNEST WOODRUFF ON INTERESTING AUTO TRIP

President of Georgia Trust Company Is Touring the Middle West

An interesting little sketch of a 3,000-mile auto trip made by Mr. Ernest Woodruff, president of the Trust Company of Georgia, appears in a recent issue of the Minneapolis Journal:

The clipping follows:

Just as if he had run over from Stillwater or up from Hastings, Ernest Woodruff, of Atlanta, Ga., drew up his automobile at the Northwestern National bank today and came in to cash a little check for expense money. Mrs. Woodruff and George and Henry Woodruff, seventeen and fifteen years of age, were outside in the car.

"We left Atlanta three weeks ago and ran through Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago," Mr. Woodruff said. "Then we decided that we wanted to see Minneapolis, of which we had heard much, and so we came up. We are going back by way of St. Louis, Memphis and Birmingham. We will have made about 3,000 miles when we get back."

Mr. Woodruff is president of the Trust Company of Georgia. He was impressed, he said, by the optimism and business activity of the northwest.

UNIVERSITY CLUB PLANS TO BECOME STATEWIDE

Proposes to Organize College Men as Power for Social and Educational Betterment

A plan to establish a branch of the University club of Atlanta in each of the larger cities of the state, and by that means organize the college men as a power for social and educational betterment, has been tentatively outlined to the members of the club by Thomas W Connally, the secretary, at the direction of the club council.

The club already has 144 non-resident members, and if the increase continues at the present rate it bids fair to exceed the number of resident members.

*The remarkable growth of the non-*resident membership has impressed the officers with the expending influence of the University club idea, and with the possibilities for making it a center of state-wide social and educational activity.

The constitution of the club provides for a council or governing board composed of resident members. It has been suggested that some kind of advisory board of non-resident members be organized. To this end and for the purpose of inviting suggestions, Secretary Connally has written each non-resident member a letter setting forth the plan in a general way, and has likewise written the resident members of the club.

HITS DYNAMITE SACK BLOW WITH A HAMMER

Plumber Is Then Blown Ten Feet—Hands, Feet and Side Injured

Ed S. Hicks, a plumber, was badly injured Tuesday morning when he picked up a package wrapped in cloth and struck it a severe blow with a hammer.

The cloth contained dynamite and Hicks was blown ten feet away, sustaining injuries to both hands, his right side and left knee. The index finger of the right hand was amputated by Dr. Frank L. Eskridge, who was called in to attend Hicks' wounds.

Hicks was working at a negro house at 122 Tattnall street on a plumbing job. It is thought the dynamite was concealed where Hicks discovered it by Howard Burns, a negro, who lived there, and several months ago killed himself and wife.

Hicks will recover, according to his physician. He lives at 21 Reservoir street, and is employed by the Stephenson company, plumbers.

The Last Week of "Blue Tag" Furniture Prices

When the doors of the furniture store are closed next Saturday at 1 o'clock, "Blue Tag" furniture prices will be a thing of the past.

So this must be Opportunity Week.

We have no desire to cry "wolf," but the fact remains, and it is a very important fact to those who have a sense of economy, that within the space of this week the furniture that will make your home the cozy, comfortable place you would have it may be bought to better advantage than will be possible in many months.

The "Blue Tag" savings are real and genuine, as real and genuine as the furniture itself. Such prices could not be maintained throughout the year. No store could afford them. And so, what housekeeper can afford to miss them now, while they do exist?

Whether it be the bedroom, the dining room, the living room, the library or all of these that need furniture, make selections right now and profit.

Now for a Quick Disposal of Some Two Hundred Waists

As startling as the low prices are, and as great as may be the expectations they well arouse, we venture that women are going to be pleasantly surprised when they see the waists these prices stand for.

But two hundred waists in such a waist store are a very small quantity and, like remnants, are not to be allowed to clutter, they must be done with, and so they will be, in a way most pleasing to those who would save.

$1.00

For $2, $3 to $4 Waists

Batistes and voiles are the materials. There are too few of any one kind to explain accurately what you will find, but Cluny and Irish laces are much in evidence (yokes often show Irish lace medallions), lace collars and low flat collars, variously pretty, net frills—styles stylish this season; some are a bit mussed, but at $1.00!

69c

For $1.50 & $1.75 Waists

Women will not have to look at the price tickets to tell that these are $1.50 and $1.75 waists. They will see worth in the voiles and crepes and batistes, and they will know that such neat workmanship and dainty laces and embroideries are unusual for even $1.50 and $1.75. High neck, long sleeves, and low neck, flat collars and short sleeves.

TERMS SO EASY ALL CAN BUY

If a history of piano selling in Atlanta should ever be written, this wonderful sale of ours would be entitled to at least a chapter.

The first day of this sale was a revelation to us. We were confident that the shrewd buyers would be quick to take advantage of these great offerings in good pianos, but we were not quite prepared for the rush of buyers that came. A rush so great in fact that it amounted to almost an overflow, and many are the expressions of gratification we hear from the different purchasers, each satisfied with his or her selection; pleased with the price and astonished at the liberal terms extended, whether it was a fine high grade Grand or a beautiful player, also in many cases an upright, new and second hand, each was happy and satisfied.

Of course, the wise buyers realize that an opportunity like this may never occur again. You know we simply must move our entire stock in the next few days on account of making room for our fall shipments now en route and we realize to sell so many pianos in such a short time no cost, no profit could be considered. This will be Atlanta's greatest piano bargain event in years, and we want our friends, and the friends of our friends and every one needing a piano, to get the benefit of the big reductions we are making in order to close out this stock quickly.

We want these pianos in the homes of the people rather than in the storage house, and to make sure that this will be accomplished we have marked every instrument at prices so low your good judgment will tell you to buy.

A World-Wide Movement For Children's Health

The International Congress on School Hygiene, which assembled yesterday in Buffalo, N. Y., should prove one of the most fruitful events of the year, not only for the field of education, but for public interests at large.

This congress, the fourth of its kind that has been held, represents a world-wide, organized movement to improve and to conserve the health of school children; and that, of course, means an effort to strengthen the vitality of the rising generation, mentally and morally as well as physically.

Scientists and educators from all the leading nations have come together to discuss the problems and the opportunities of this work. Their interchange of views will throw new light on many perplexing questions and their recommendations will bestir the people as a whole to a keener sense of public duty in this great sphere of social betterment.

There can be no doubt, as one of the speakers at the opening session of the congress declared, that a vast wave of sanitary science is passing around the world. It is manifested in hundreds of different ways: in a deeper perception of the importance of individual health, and a broader perception of the importance of public health; in divers movements for the prevention of disease and the conservation of man's physical welfare; but in no way is it more strikingly manifested than in the growing demands for a larger measure of hygiene and sanitation in public schools.

Georgia and the South have peculiar cause to be interested in such a movement, for, many of their gravest educational and social problems are interwoven with the question of school hygiene. Our teachers and school boards are more alert today than ever to the vital need of well built and properly equipped school houses. City and county and State governments are recognizing the value of medical inspection and dental examination in the public schools. Mothers' clubs are giving particular thought to the nutrition of school children; witness the popularity and the good results of the penny lunch enterprise.

These are but a few instances among thousands that are embraced in school hygiene endeavor. When children are made healthy and efficient, the future interests of society will be secure. Hence the far-reaching significance of the movement represented by this international congress.

A jealous woman would be all right if she could only keep the lid down.

Many a man who growls all day goes home and kicks the dog for barking at night.

The Field of Public Health.

In the current issue of Science, Prof. William T. Sedgwick makes the familiar yet important observation that medicine is engaged largely in attempting to remove the reasons for its existence. The distinctive achievements of medicine in recent years have been in the prevention and elimination of disease; its highest thought and purpose are now bent not simply on curing the sick but chiefly, perhaps, on conserving the well; and questions of health that once centered in the individual now center in the public.

But far from narrowing the province of the physician, these changes open before him a new field, unlimited in interest and in opportunities for service. Having cleared humanity's path of its more palpable dangers and having taught the public, in a measure at least, to take care of itself, he will be freer to dwell upon new and more baffling problems. When the older and more common maladies are prevented or eliminated, as in time they all undoubtedly will be by means of science working through organized public effort, medicine will then have a clearer course and a brighter faith for conquests now scarcely dreamed of.

The significant fact today, however, is the progress that has been made and is being made in the realm of public health and preventive measures. "This," as Prof. Sedgwick remarks, "brings the physician more and more into the service of the community at large." The doctor is coming to be no less vitally identified with the state than is the legislator or the executive office. Disease is no longer considered merely an individual problem, but a social problem with which social energy and intelligence must grapple. This is the meaning of pure food laws, of pure milk campaigns, of the anti-tuberculosis crusade, of medical inspection in public schools, of government appropriations and philanthropic gifts for the study of pellagra and hook worm; it is the meaning of the insistent demand for a bureau of vital statistics in Georgia and for more adequate system of State health laws.

The Strategic Center of the United States.

Many striking circumstances are pointed to by the Manufacturers' Record as showing that the strategic quarter of the United States for the future naval and military movements will be the South. With the opening of the Panama canal, this section will become a center of world influence. Furthermore, its mines produce the raw material for the iron and steel with which battleships are built and equipped. Its soil yields the cotton "which saves our foreign trade from adverse balances and protects our financial interests from distress and panic." It has also bays and river-mouths that must be safeguarded in order that the country's interior may be secure.

"The South, therefore, must be regarded not as a section of the country, but as the very heart of the nation's life. . . . The South is pre-eminently the place where naval stations should be maintained for building, repairing and docking our warships and where an armor plate plant should be built, if the government should decide to build one anywhere. South Atlantic and Gulf ports are the strategic points for the future commerce of the whole country, as they are the strategic places for naval stations."

Not only in regard to the navy, but in regard to the army as well, this section of the country presents peculiar advantages. It is but natural that army officials have decided that a brigade post should be established at Fort McPherson, near Atlanta. The geographical location of this city with reference to South Atlantic and Gulf ports, its railway facilities for communication with all parts of the country, together with its natural healthfulness and the excellent beginning already made in the development of a large post at Fort McPherson, make it a logical and, indeed, an ideal military center. Under the wise policy of the war department to mobilize the army at strategic points, it seems inevitable that a brigade post will be establishe at Atlanta.

Well, the world do move. Nobody said anything about the jury filing in.

All things come to him who waits, even the vote on the tariff, which comes next week.

We suggest that if Atlanta wins the pennant the attendance will beat Birmingham or any other town.

The Ever Vital Need of Drainage in Georgia.

The good things done by the Georgia Legislature at its recent session are so numerous that one is not disposed to grumble over the important things left undone but, rather, to hope that all these remaining tasks may be duly performed next year. It should be remembered, however, that some of the measures which were defeated, or left in the lurch, are of especially vital concern to public interests and cannot be much longer neglected with any degree of justice to the State. Among such measures are those for compulsory school attendance, free kindergartens, child labor reform, the establishment of a State bureau of vital statistics and the reclamation of swamp and overflow lands.

The last named subject is one of current interest throughout the South; and widespread surprise has been expressed in other states that the legislature failed to appropriate the comparatively nominal sum that would have assured the federal government's support in plans for a comprehensive survey of Georgia's great area of swamp and overflow lands. The Louisville Courier-Journal remarks in this connection that—

"From the health standpoint alone drainage would be worth untold millions to the South. Swamps are breeding spots of disease. They are responsible for much sickness and suffering and for many deaths. When a swamp is effectively drained malaria vanishes from the neighborhood, and malaria is one of the most baneful maladies of the South, carrying with it a long train of other ailments. The sanitary benefits of reclamation are as incalculable as is the economic gain that is derived from transforming noxious bogs into productive fields."

There can be no doubt that public sentiment and public judgment in Georgia are strongly in favor of the State's undertaking this important work. Drainage associations have been organized in a number of counties. The people are awakening to the fact that one-seventeenth of Georgia's area now rendered practically worthless because of swamps or overflows, but that these lands, if properly drained, would be among the most fertile and valuable in the commonwealth.

The legislature's failure to make the small appropriation necessary was due chiefly no doubt to the depleted condition of the treasury. Happily, however, that obstacle will in all probability be overcome by the time the next session is held. A well considered tax reform law has been passed and will soon be in operation. Its results are expected to be constructive and gratifying. We have good reason to hope that in 1914 the claims of swamp reclamation can be considered wholly on their merits and will be granted.

SHORTAGE IN GASOLINE

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

"Wanted—A substitute for gasoline. Millions of dollars for the right liquid fuel at the right price. Apply to any chemical or mechanical engineer in the world."

Such is the desire, translated into the language of the want ad page, of a large portion of the scientific and industrial world. Gasoline is not only high in price, but there actually is not enough of the product in sight to keep pace with the rapidly increasing number of internal combustion engines, which must use a liquid fuel so highly volatile that upon the application of heat it will be turned into gas ready to be exploded by an electric sparker. Kerosene may be used but it requires a specially constructed carburetor and the application of much outside heat before the engine can be started. Alcohol may be used, but it is even higher in price than gasoline, although the supply is practically unlimited.

The International Association of Recognized Automobile clubs, the membership of which is composed of representatives of the most influential automobile clubs in the world, has offered an award of $100,000 cash for the best all-round fuel other than "petrol," or gasoline, which will satisfactorily take the place of the petroleum product. The decision was made at the meeting of the board of directors held in Paris last February, when it was arranged that each of the big clubs in the organization representing France, England, Germany, Austria Hungary, Holland, Russia, Switzerland, Roumania and Egypt, should contribute its portion to the general fund which shall constitute the prize. Baron de Kuylen de Nyvelt is the chairman of the committee, and has his office in Paris at the headquarters of the International Association of Recognized Automobile clubs.

The British Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders is offering a prize amounting to the same sum. The restrictions are very simple. The fuel must be suitable for existing internal combustion engines. It must be less expensive, readily procurable and of such nature that it cannot be cornered by trusts, either national or international. Preparations for the formal announcement of these conditions are now being made ready by the committees. A important detail in connection with the prize offered by the Association of automobile clubs is the assurance, which will be obtained from all of the governments of Europe, that the new fuel will be taxed very moderately if at all.

In the United States equal interest is being manifested in a gasoline substitute. Several new fuels are now being tried out by automobile manufacturing companies, the results of which as not yet complete. One of these which it is claimed can be manufactured at 3 cents less per gallon than the present rate for gasoline has indicated a capacity of 15 per cent more mileage to the gallon than gasoline. Another fuel has proved smokeless, sootless and practically odorless, but, according to the present tests, it will not start the engine as quickly as gasoline.

A meeting was held in Pittsburg during the first week in August to which were invited delegates from twenty different organizations interested in petroleum and its products. A careful study has been made of the gas with situation with regard to its use for fuel and arrangements were made for the co-operation of this nation with the International Petroleum commission, which was organized in Paris several years ago.

In order to obtain a single gallon of gasoline from refinable California petroleum, it is necessary to produce as by-products nine gallons of kerosene and thirty gallons of residue oils. In other words, it requires forty gallons of crude petroleum to secure one gallon of gasoline. Although the output of western petroleum is continually increasing the price of gasoline is rising. The investigations made by the department of commerce indicate that the advancing price of gasoline is due solely to the law of supply and demand. No trust or corporation is responsible for the higher prices which are now impending.

The production of crude oil in this country will probably approximate 300,000,000 barrels this year. But the largest increase of production of gasoline yet recorded in a year has been less than 10 per cent, while the production of power-driven vehicles will in all probability represent an increase of 100 per cent. In addition to this the supply of crude oils yielding gasoline is decreasing. The increased crude oil output of Oklahoma and California will consist largely of asphalt oils having insufficient gasoline for existing requirements.

A means of supplementing the present gasoline resources which is likely to give some addition to the future supply is the manufacture of gasoline from the natural gas which comes from sands associated with the oil fields. This process has passed the experimental stage in California. It consists of compressing the gas and subsequently condensing it into liquid form. The process was introduced nearly five years ago. By 1910 over 13,000 gallons of gasoline were produced by it. In 1911 50,000 gallons were secured and this quantity was more than doubled in 1912. A movement is now under way to buy up all the gas which has been going to waste in the Santa Maria oil field. The promoters are to pay 5 cents per 1,000 feet for it, and it is expected that the output from this source will result in a large quantity of gasoline this year, although even this increase will not be in any way equivalent to the increase in the demand.

The use of kerosene as a substitute for gasoline in the production of motor power is feasible, and is being regarded with increasing favor, especially by automobile manufacturers. At the recent meeting held in Pittsburg for the discussion of the fluid fuel problem several manufacturers expressed the opinion that kerosene might solve it.

Several kerosene carburetors are now upon the market which are reported to have met the full requirements of the tests to which they have been subjected. At a meeting of the Society of Automobile Engineers held in Indianapolis last month, the opinion was expressed that despite the fact that the oil-driven engine had heretofore had less commercial popularity than the gas or gasoline engine, it will in the future come to supply the power for transportation by land, water and air.

The shortage in the gasoline supply caused by the increased demand is well recognized by the United States navy which is planning to depend less upon it in the future. Even now the only gasoline used by the navy is to supply the engines of some of the submarines and for the motor boats which are furnished to the large battleships. The new submarines are being supplied with burning oil engines because the increasing output of American crude oil renders the fuel oil resources much more dependable than those of gasoline.

In connection with the market prices of kerosene and gasoline, it is interesting to note how values are affected by popular demand. In former days the oil engine was expensive because of the high price of both crude and refined oils. Now the conditions are absolutely reversed. Kerosene has become a by-product of little value. It is quoted at 50 per cent less a gallon than gasoline. The increased use of electricity and gas for illumination has greatly lowered the demand for kerosene since it is no longer in such great demand for lighting purposes. Consequently, some additional use for it must be found if it is to preserve its value as a marketable commodity.

I'm a scintillating star in entomology,
For Hexapoda are custard pie to me;
I have never yet made any man apology
For my knowing less about the stuff than he;
I am classified among the insectivora—
For to eat up insects—that is just my game;
Show me any bug you please and I will give her a
Most elucidating scientific name.

I can tell the Odonata from the Diptera
By the nodus on the margin of its wing;
I can pick the Thysanura from Hemiptera,
For the former's such a simple little thing;
I can differentiate among Orthoptera;
Euplexoptera seem simple as can be;
While Physopoda, Isoptera, Plecoptera
Are as plain as Lepidoptera to me.

Yet I've tried in vain to find a name that's sensible
For that measly, creeping, crawling little devil
Who maintains with clamor truly reprehensible
That the game of baseball isn't on the level.
I have looked up every possible authority,
But not whit of information have I dug;
So I think, with the consent of the majority,
I shall label that there insect merely "Bug."

The Outpopulating Power

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

There is a war constantly going on. It is not of axe upon helm, shot upon armor plate, duels of death-spitting dreadnoughts, nor airplanes dropping bombs upon a sleeping city. It is a deeper battle, subterranean as instinct, unseen as nature's hidden laws.

Deep as the cause of the running of sap in spring. Deep as the reason why Sahara is parched and the Mississippi valley is watered.

A battle unnoticed as glacier movements. Irresistible as the succession of geologic eras, pitiless as Time, sure as the procession of the equinoxes.

It is the battle of blood against blood, race against race, stock against stock. It is the war of the powers of procreation.

It is the elemental competition in fecundity.

"What constitutes a state?" asks Sir William Jones; and answers his question: "Not cities proud with spires and turret crowned; not bays and broad armed ports, where laughing at the storm rich navies ride; but—men:" and his conclusion should be mended; let us rather say, "women."

The state's ultimate armament is the strong, breeding woman.

Not the war cries of bearded hosts but the lusty cries of the army of babies are the terrible menace of destiny.

Sex perversion means the end of the world, the people extinguished in madness. Sex uncleanness means a race rushing toward its Day of Judgment.

It is useless for France to refill so long as her death rate exceeds her birth rate.

England builds battleships; it were far better she gave heed to the fact that her population is decreasing.

The profoundest crime of American plutocracy is that it will not breed, and spreads the death gospel of childlessness to others.

Look at the fahsion papers, the newest models in gowns, latest hints from Paris; and see the tendency of upper-tendom toward the ideal of Kipling's "damn thin-hipted woman;" man's plaything, not his creative mate!

Observe the universal fear of the responsibilities of marriage, the dread of children, the expressed creed of a weak race that one should not have children until one has a competence. The pioneers who hewed the path for the Golden West had no such puling timidity.

In the long evolutionary struggle for the survival of the fittest that nation shall conquer that shall not shrink from applying eugenics to the procreation of itself; that shall study eugenics as the key-problem of destiny; that shall drive out sex-perversion from life and literature with the whip of life-preserving scorn; that shall idealize with the utmost beauty of poet and romancer the mating of its young; that shall tear veils of false modesty and criminal ignorance from the sex instinct and replace them with the halo of truth, knowledge and self-reverence; that shall eject the medieval shame of nature and take pride in its virility; that shall exalt in its heart and support and protect with all its resources the woman who bears children and devotes her life to their bringing up.

For the vanguard of a nation's conquest, and the last citadel of its defense, is not the armed man nor the war machine; it is THE MOTHER.

Living English Poets

(R. A. Scott-James in the September number of the North American Review.)

A few years ago it was the fashion in England to lament the death of promising authors, especially poets. But since then English people have assured themselves that they are still, after all, a poetical people. The reproach against the age was taken as a challenge by dozens of young adventurers, who resolved to prove in their own persons that the twentieth century was not without poets. Tiny volumes of verse fluttered forth from the press. Poetry societies were started, and poetry reviews, and men and women met in a darkened hall to hear Mr. Sturge Moore declaim sonorous verses. Publishers began to advertise new genius, and reviewers began to attend to poetry as if it were really a serious business. The opening pages of the English Review were devoted to poems which seemed to be appreciated in proportion to their ever-increasing length. Mr. John Masefield had a success such as had been attained by no poet since Stephen Phillips in his prime. It is true that Mr. W. H. Davies might have starved if he had not received a government pension; that Mr. Yeats—I believe I am right—never entertained the idea of supporting himself by poetry; that Mr. Doughty has not so much as been heard of by one Englishman in a thousand. Nevertheless, poetry has now become a mentionable subject in decent society; and it is no longer synonymous with Tennyson or even Kipling. It has become a modern thing, lending itself to new experiments, a possible vehicle for new ideas, a means even of becoming notorious on a grand scale. . . . .

Mr. Masefield was—and is—a lyrical poet, fitted to express the personal emotions which lyrical poetry can support. But he became obsessed with the conviction that poetry ought to be made to do something else than suggest feelings and ideas in a beautiful way; that it ought to serve a social purpose; that it ought to become a direct contributory force to the social morality of the time; that it ought to concern itself with practical modern questions in a practical way; that it ought to present actual life, realistically. The same feeling affected a lesser poet, Mr. Wilfrid Wilson Gibson, who, being a story-teller in verse, and a moralist, has been acclaimed as a powerful poet in both England and America. . . . .

But I am not very far from suggesting that the effort made by Mr. Gibson and Mr. Masefield to bring poetry into touch with modern life is without significance. It represented reaction against the querulousness, the vagueness, the mere prettiness which have so often resulted in nauseous verse. It had its source in the same impulse which led Mr. J. M. Synge to create his finest imaginative effects by means of a severely realistic method. And still earlier Mr. Doughty, who holds a solitary position in modern poetry, had expressed himself in the only way that was natural to him, through an archaic language, the language in which he thought, which lent itself to the hard, vivid and superbly brutal images belonging to his primitive, barbarian, and as it were primeval theme.

In August

All the long August afternoon
The little drowsy stream
Whispers a melancholy tune,
As if it dreamed of June,
And whispered in its dream.

The thistles show beyond the brook
Dust on their down and bloom,
And out of many a weed-grown nook
The aster flowers look
With eyes of tender gloom.

The silent orchard aisles are sweet
With smell of ripening fruit;
Through the sere grass in shy retreat,
Flutter, at coming feet,
The robins strange and mute.

There is no wind to stir the leaves,
The harsh leaves overhead;
Only the querulous cricket grieves
And shrilling locust weaves
A song of summer dead.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS ABSENCE OF WATTS

Marietta Man Left Home Last Wednesday and Has Not Been Heard From Since

Joe B. Watts, known by his friends as "Bright" Watts, left Marietta last Wednesday and has not been heard from since. His wife suspects foul play and has requested Sheriff W. E. Swanson, of Cobb county, to help locate him.

Watts told his wife that he was going into the country to sell a clothes cleaning preparation, for which he is agent, and no word has come from him up to Tuesday morning. Five small children and a wife are left in destitute circumstances at his residence on Mills street.

Watts is thirty-five years of age, weighs about 140 pounds, dark complexion, black hair and bluish grey eyes. When he left home he wore a brown suit of clothes with diagonal self-stripe.

Any information as to his whereabouts will be greatly appreciated by his family and the sheriff of Cobb county.

LONG LEGAL SIEGE OVER HARRY THAW NOW SEEMS LIKELY

from his determination not to "squeal" and tell all about his driving Thaw from Matteawan. His threat last week to tell all resulted in the immediate employment of counsel for him by the Thaw family.

Explaining his desire not to talk about the Thaw case, Jerome said:

"I am sick to death of Thaw; the mention of his name by anybody has made me sick for some time now. I am sorry that I have had to take up the case again."

Make Formal Request To Deport Harry Thaw

(By Associated Press.)

OTTAWA, Ontario, Aug. 26.—Deputy Attorney General Franklin Kennedy, of New York state, formally requested the immigration department today to deport Harry Thaw as soon as the habeas corpus proceedings at Sherbrooke are disposed of.

They want Thaw turned over to Chief Immigration Officer Clark at Montreal as soon as released by the court, and deported over the New York border.

C. J. Doherty, acting minister of the interior, and Blake Robertson, assistant superintendent of immigration of Canada, would not promise that Thaw would be sent direct to the New York boundary, saying merely that he would be dealt with according to the Canadian laws. It was explained that if Thaw were released by the immigration authorities tomorrow, a formal inquiry would be held at Sherbrooke to ascertain if he belonged to the class of persons liable to deportation. Should it be determined to deport him, announcement as to the route by which he would be sent back would then be made.

Dr. Kieb Helping in Fight to Deport Thaw

(By Associated Press.)

MATTEAWAN, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Dr. R. F. C. Kieb, head of Matteawan State hospital, left late last night for Sherbrooke, Canada, to assist in the efforts to have Harry K. Thaw deported into New York state.

"I don't know why I have been asked to go to Canada," said Dr. Kieb. "I have had a request from the deputy attorney general, but I don't know of what particular use I can be to the state in getting Thaw deported. I expect to get back here in a day or two, as the business of the hospital is very pressing and cannot afford to wait for Thaw."

Wife Says Thaw's Mother Agreed to Pay Her to Sue

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, testifying before a referee in bankruptcy, swore today that Harry Thaw's mother had contracted to pay her $15,000 cash and $1,000 a month so long as she (Evelyn) should live, to enter into an action for the annulment of her marriage to Harry Thaw.

This contract, the show girl testified, was made some time in 1907 or 1908, after Thaw had killed Stanford White, and was now in the possession of her lawyer, John Reilly, of this city. Mr. Reilly also had checks for $15,000—one of them, for $5,000, bearing Mrs. Harry Thaw's signature—none of which had been honored, the witness added. These checks, she said, were the first payment on the contract.

the men in their hotel. C. J. Bosshardt remarked that the twelve stood willing to challenge any other dozen men in Atlanta to a game of straight-away set back. They practiced so much that they are experts now, he declared.

The jury boasted of a quartet which entertained with song for an hour or two every evening. Two or three were also expert on the piano. On at least one occasion, it has been disclosed, an outsider heard the harmony of these voices, Mrs. Deber Townsend, who hadn't been married to Juror Townsend but a short while before he was taken from her side to fill a chair in the jury box, called the hotel on the telephone one night and requested a bailiff to tell her husband she was lonesome.

"Wait a minute," said the bailiff. A minute later Mrs. Townsend heard, "I won't Be Home Until Morning," over the wire. Among the voices she discerned her husband's. Several other selections were rendered before the receiver was hung up, it is said.

SUSPENDED FROM CLUB.

The complexities in the affairs of the twelve men which arose during their absence are too numerous for mention. Several surprises awaited Foreman Winburn, for example. A reporter intercepted him on his way to his club.

"I found a notice that I was suspended for not paying my debts," he explained, "and I am on my way now to get reinstated."

But this was not Mr. Winburn's only trouble. He discovered Monday evening that F. J. Baker, who temporarily filled his office as claim agent of the Atlanta and West Point Railway company, was ill and married. Baker's secret marriage eleven months ago was revealed by his bride when she feared that he was going to die last week. Mr. Baker is recovering, it is said.

The twelve men propose a reunion some time in the future, at which time all the Mrs. Jurors will be present and get acquainted.

Each one of the jurors declared that he had been guided solely by the evidence in the case and that conditions outside the court room had absolutely no influence on their verdict. At no time during the trial did they hear cheering, they say. Occasionally they heard laughter in the audience, but it was provoked by a pleasantry that caused them to laugh, too.

AT THE FORSYTH.

The novelty of the bill at the Forsyth this week is the Svengali mystery act, it being a demonstration of the power of hypnotism.

A young lady comes on the stage, is hypnotized by the professor, and when she proceeds to sing selections from any opera requested by the audience.

A good voice, well trained; the peculiar impression of hearing a person sing while under the hypnotic influence; speculation as to how the professor, in the audience, contrives to communicate to the young lady what seelction has been requested—these elements combine to make the act highly interesting.

The Meredith sisters, here before, have a number of new rollicking songs in their reportoire. One of them especially, "Oriental Eyes," made a hit with the audience Monday night.

Miss Meredith Benton, a handsome and attractively gowned young woman, aided by Fred Bond, who is quite funny, keep the laughter going at a rapid rate in their comedy sketch entitled, "Handkerchief No. 15."

Then there is Claude Golden, an entertaining card expert; Lewis and Dody in comedy; Joe Flynn, monologuist, and the four Regals.

AT THE BIJOU.

The Jewel Kelly Stock company opened at the Bijou Monday night in "Her Fatal Shadow," a drama with an abundance of plot, comedy, climax, etc., and done letter perfect by the company. The Biou management has decided to provide its patrons with an indefinite run of plays by the Jewel Kelly company, which is a talented and thoroughly trained organization having, among others, such favorites as Eddie Black, Earl Highley, Rose Morris, Marie Clare, Thomas McDonald, Grace Webber and Clair Summers.

AT THE LYRIC

Owing to the fact that there have been so many inquiries at the Lyric theater for seats for the engagement of Miss Emma Bunting at that house next week, the management have decided to place the tickets on sale a day earlier than usual. Therefore, the box office at the Lyric will open Wednesday morning at 10 a. m., instead of Thursday, as has heretofore been the custom.

JURY OF MARRIED MEN TO TRY DREW CAMINETTI

Second of Famous White Slavery Cases Opens Before Federal Court

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 26.—The second of the now nationally known Diggs-Caminetti cases, the trial of F. Drew Caminetti, who must face the charge of violating the Mann white slave act under which his companion, Maury I. Diggs, was convicted, started today in the United States district court.

The same witnesses who testified at the trial of Diggs last week appeared at the federal building and, struggling through the crowd that had gathered about the court room, forced their way into the building, shielding themselves as well as they could from the battery of clicking cameras.

It was understood that no testimony would be introduced today, as the time was to be given over to prospective jurors.

The same methods that were pursued in the examination of the talesmen at the Diggs trial were repeated. It was important both to the defense and to the government to learn whether talesmen under examination were married or single men and whether they were men of family. The government, as was the case at Diggs' trial, showed by the questions asked that it would seek to try the case before a jury of men married and with families.

PRINCE FRANCOIS, DOG CHAMPION, IS DEAD

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Prince Francois, champion of his class, is dead. The prince came of a royal line of St. Bernards and in dog shows throughout the United States had won the verdict of many judges.

In all he captured fifteen champion cups before he was carled off early today by heart disease. He was the property of Mrs. Thomton O. Crown, of this city, and was said never to have been defeated in an exhibition.

Your Town's Death-Rate

YOU men in charge of municipal affairs have a big responsibility on your hands.

Ever consider that maybe your hold-back, out-of-date and short-sighted policy is keeping the death-rate higher than it ought to be?

Fevers, contagion, death, with their piteous aftermath of poverty and distress may be traceable to your negligence.

Solemn, but true.

Why let your town lack the sanitation, the comforts, the improvements that will drive out disease and make it, at the same time, an attractive, happy place to live in?

We can provide the Improvements. We are Municipal Engineers, and we have put more than 300 towns in good sanitary shape. We should like an opportunity to tell you where these towns are and what we did for them.

We plan, estimate, finance, construct, and, if desired, operate Sanitary Systems, Water and Power Plants, Paving and other municipal improvements. Write to us at once.

Woman Hits Masher Then Calls Officer

After slapping an alleged masher in the face with a newspaper in Mitchell street near Whitehall Monday night, Mrs. S. P. Anderson, a pretty young night operator at the Southern railway offices, called an officer and had the man arrested.

The man gave his name as Howard T. Page, an auditor of Baltimore, Md., when docketed at the police station. He refused to make any statement. He was charged with disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Anderson says she was walking along Whitehall when the man first commenced following her, and that he accosted her after she turned into Mitchell street and tried to walk by her side, she says.

Mrs. Anderson was very indignant and says she will appear in person to testify against Page when he is given a hearing before the recorder.

HARRY SCOTT MAY BE HEAD OF PINKERTONS

With the Resignation of H. B. Pierce, Scott Will Likely Become Superintendent

The resignation of H. B. Pierce, superintendent of the Pinkerton Detective agency, has been accepted by the agency, A. S. Cowardin, of New Orleans, general superintendent of the agency, said that Pierce would have been discharged if he had not resigned.

The charge against him was insubordination in connection with the Frank case, the general superintendent said.

Pierce was accused by Solicitor Dorsey of underhand methods in the matter of certain evidence he said the detective had concealed from the police. The club and the pay envelope figured in this evidence. Chief Langford, of the detective department, also denounced Pierce.

It is believed that Harry Scott, assistant superintendent, will become superintendent. He was a dominant figure during the Phagan case.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

On her way home from the old Briar Path Jenny Wren stopped to rest in a bush beside the crooked little path that comes down the hill, when who should come along but Jimmy Skunk. Now, just as usual, Jenny Wren was fidgeting and fussing about, and Jimmy Skunk grinned as he watched her.

"Hello, Jenny Wren!" said he. "What are you doing here?"

"I'm resting on my way home from the old briar patch, if you must know, Jimmy Skunk!" replied Jenny Wren, changing her position half a dozen times while she was speaking.

"Ho, ho, ho!" laughed Jimmy Skunk. "Do you call that resting? That's a joke, Jenny Wren. Resting! Why, you couldn't sit still and rest if you tried."

"I could so! I'm resting right now, so there, Jimmy Skunk!" protested Jenny Wren in a very indignant tone of voice, and hopped all over the little bush while she was speaking. "I guess if you know what I know you'd be excited, too."

"Well, I guess the quickest way for me to know is for you to tell me," replied Jimmy. "I'm just aching to be excited and never hurries no matter what happens.

"You'll have to keep right on aching then," replied Jenny Wren with a saucy flirt of her funny little tail. "There's great news in the old briar patch, and I'm the only one that knows it, but I've promised not to tell."

Jimmy pricked up his ears. "News in the old briar patch must have something to do with Peter Rabbit," said he. "What has Peter done now?"

"I'll never tell! I'll never tell!" cried Jenny Wren, growing so excited that it seemed to Jimmy as if there was danger that she would turn herself inside out. "I promised not to and I never will!" Then for fear that she would in spite of herself she flew on her way home.

Jimmy watched her out of sight with a puzzled frown. "If I didn't know that she gets so terribly excited over nothing I'd think that there really was some news in the old briar patch," he muttered to himself. "Anyway, I haven't anything better to do, so I believe I'll drop around that way and make Peter Rabbit a call."

He found Peter in a sweet clover patch just outside the old briar patch, and it struck Jimmy that Peter looked uncommonly happy. He said as much.

"I am," replied Peter, before he thought. Then he added hastily: "You see I've been uncommonly happy ever since I returned with Mrs. Peter from the old pasture."

"But I hear there's great news over here in the old briar patch," persisted Jimmy Skunk.

"What is it, Peter?"

Peter pretended to be very much surprised. "Great news!" he repeated. "Great news! Why, what news can there be over here? Who told you that?"

"A little bird told me," replied Jimmy, slyly.

"It must have been Jenny Wren!" said Peter, once more speaking before he thought.

"Then there is news over here!" cried Jimmy, triumphantly. "What is it, Peter?"

But Peter shook his head as if he handn'tthe slightest idea and couldn't imagine. Jimmy coaxed and teased but all in vain, and finally he started for home no wiser than before.

"Just the same, I believe that Jenny Wren told the truth and that there is news over in the old briar patch," he muttered to himself. "Something has happened over there and Peter won't tell. I wonder what it can be?"

Mrs. Joseph G. Camp entertained this afternoon at bridge in compliment to Mrs. Thomas Daniel, who will leave soon for Columbia, S. C., to make her home, and to Mrs. Bethune, of Rome, who was formerly Miss Gladys Kirk, of Atlanta.

Pretty decorations in yellow and white beautified the house, the color scheme being carried out in all the minor details.

Sixteen friends were invited.

Would Go One Better

(Gulf States Presbyterian.)

The new manager was a bit of a tyrant, and before he had been at the mill a month he was pretty generally detested and wasn't long in finding out the fact.

Wishing to know the reason why he was disliked, he went to a mild looking weaver and said, "I say, Robert, how is it that the hands here don't seem to like me?"

"Well, that's rather a big question," the weaver cautiously answered.

"Why," continued the manager, "at the last place I worked they gave me a silver teapot when I was leaving."

"Only a silver teapot?" said the weaver. "By golly! If you'll only leave here I bet they'll give yer a gold kettle!"

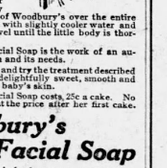
Baby's summer skin troubles

How to prevent them

During the hot summer months your baby's skin needs especial care. The high temperature and free perspiration cause the slightest thing to irritate it.



To prevent it becoming raw or chafed and breaking out in rashes and red spots bathe your baby daily with Woodbury's Facial Soap in the following way: Use lukewarm water and with a very soft washcloth or silk sponge, apply a generous lather of Woodbury's over the entire body. Then rinse well, using more water and pat with a soft towel until the little body is thoroughly dry.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of an authority on the skin and its needs.

A Trip to Catoosa Springs In North Georgia

The word "Catoosa" in the olden days meant to Georgia and the people of the south what the White Sulphur Springs in Virginia mean today.

The stately hotel with its broad verandas and tall columns crowned the hill above the springs and always was crowded with visitors.

This hotel was destroyed by fire long ago and a second one built on the same spot was also burned down. Today the long row of cottages and a simply constructed building used as a hotel are all that remain of the past.

The springs that gush from beneath the everlasting hills are there just the same, the lawns are beautiful and green, birds are singing in the tree tops and add to the sense of rest and peace which pervade the place.

Our little party made the trip in two automobiles over the country roads, which carry you through some of the most beautiful scenery in north Georgia, and we enjoyed every minute of the ride.

We spent a most comfortable night after testing the water from nearly all the springs. The food is excellent, well prepared and homelike.

The springs are marvelous, sulphur, iron, lithia, arsenic, epsom, gushing forth in a wonderful flow, and as we drank cup after cup I looked around and thought of the hundreds of people crowded up in our cities who need a change of air and scene and who say, "I cannot afford to go away." I felt like I must tell these people what a grand opportunity Catoosa Springs offers for health and recreation.

The cottages are conveniently located and board at the hotel is very reasonable; it is all plain and simple, but comfortable.

I would love to see every cottage filled and the entire hillside covered with nurses and children and tired fathers and mothers.

There is no spring water anywhere with greater curative qualities or more delicious and refreshing.

It is an easy trip to go by train to Catoosa station on the Western and Atlantic railroad and a drive of three miles will soon bring you to this haven of rest. I hope the day may not be far distant when this place may become the same popular resort it used to be.

From the conditions under which they were bought, which enables the unusually low price, to the special pains which has gone in the designing and making, the choosing of materials, the combining of wonderful color tones, of these creations of dainty loveliness and charm.

Adorable little dance Dresses that look like a mist of tulle which has settled for an instant on a substratum of very supple silk crepe. There are others for evening and afternoon which are equally pretty and fascinating and much more durable, despite their air of fragility. Some of soft silky crepe de chine in all the indescribable beauty of delicate coloring, such as peach yellow, apricot, the pink of a rose petal, soft lilac and wonderful blues. Elegant dresses also of black-and-white for evening. All the new fall fashion features in draperies, tiered skirts, high velvet girdles, toreador sashes, garnitures and trimming effects are shown in these dresses.

A Really Wonderful Feature

—is that such Dresses could be priced at only $12.75—when you expected to find them as high as $40—for that is the real value of many of them.

But this special price is a special privilege which you may share because we made this special purchase of the entire lot of 100 Dresses which the makers had used as display garments in their "Style Exhibit."

They are mainly one of a kind, and each of charming style—such desirable Dresses that you will not want to miss the opportunity of possessing one at this price, tomorrow—$12.75.

Rush to New Gold Camp

(Seattle Sun.)

Outfitting!

Hundreds of Seattle men are—getting ready to join the stampede to the Shushana fields, where it is reported rich gold strikes have been made.

While no authentic reports have come direct it from the diggings, the prevailing feeling among old-timers, as well as those newly bitten with the "gold fever," is that the strike is a genuine one.

All of Alaska has joined in the stampede, according to scores of private telegrams and news reports. Cordova and surrounding territory has completely surrendered to the stampede, and from the camp undoubtedly will be as big as Fairbanks.

From Seattle the steamer Northwestern will leave Wednesday with a full load of gold hunters. They have secured their horses and engines here, as it is reported Alaskan towns have been left entirely without horses.

The Northwestern will carry fifty pack horses, which have been bought in the local markets.

Experienced Alaskans claim the best route to the Upper Tanana watershed, where the Shushana strike is reported, is by way of Nagway to White Horse, where a steamer helps out for a considerable distance, leaving only a short trail for the final finish.

The other route is by way of the Copper River and Northwestern railroad from Cordova. The trails are 110 miles from the terminus of the line.

The Cordova Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting passed resolutions asking the railway and the Alaska road commission to assist in improving the trail from McCarthy to the Shushana district.

The Evening Story — Jessie's Way

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

The small parlor of the cheap flat was gaudily overfurnished. Mrs. Gerhardt, with a vision of her own four-story mansion by the lake, suppressed a smile as she took in the cheap gloss of the mahogany chairs, the tawdry pictures, the atrocious gay vases that crowded the mantel, the too green and brown rug that jarred horribly with the faded wall paper and the bright blue satin of an upholstered settee, evidently the star piece of the room.

She jotted down the address.

Mrs. Karle, who owned the parlor, chatted on contentedly, ignorant of the suppressed smile. In fact, her own eyes went about the room with frank pride in its glory. She was glad of the chance to show its grandeur to an old schoolmate. It had been a long time since they attended high school together back in the small Indiana town. Amy Gebhardt's face showed faint lines in spite of careful massage and her mouth drooped in telltale middle-aged style. Jessie Karle's shapeless form and graying hair testified plainly to more than forty years.

Mrs. Gerhardt had happened casually to read an account of a street car collision. The name of one motorman struck her as familiar. Ezra Karle was an uncommon name, too. She puzzled for an hour before she remembered that was the name of the man whom Jessie Riley, the plump, pretty girl who shared her seat during junior year at high school, had married. From a whim time had atrophied her affection for Jessie—she dotted down the address. From another whim, one idle morning, she ordered her limousine around and went to see her. Amy had gone to an eastern boarding school after that year, and married before coming home. Jessie had set out for Chicago and a career that didn't include school teaching which was the best the small town offered.

So they had not seen each other for twenty years.

Jessie had come to the door in a rumpled kimono tied down by a far from clean calico sash. Her hair was tucked up frowsily. Both cheeks and hands were red from the suds of the wash tub that could see plainly through the open door of the kitchen at the end of the tiny hall. Amy had drawn back in disgust. She was not fond of wash tub atmospheres.

But—— "Amy!" Jessie had cried in glad surprise. "Goodness me! Where'd you drop from?" Come right in. I'm washing—but you won't mind, I guess."

The gladness in Jessie's face was good to see. It took Amy back to the lazy, sleepy life in the small town when a lesson in rhetoric had been life's greatest trouble, and Jessie had slavishly copied her shirtwaists, her hats, and her way of doing her blond hair.

For a while they talked of the meager news each possessed of the old town of Jarrett's dead, and friends scattered. Then: "Happy?" asked Amy lightly. "I remember you planned to marry a millionaire who'd ride you out of the occasional blues you used to have." She didn't expect an answer. Amy always asked light questions, and rambled on without waiting for a reply.

"I am," answered Jessie. The contented tone rang too true for there to be doubted. "And you are, of course?" with the same old admiring look at Amy's pretty, dainty face.

For the first time in twenty years, perhaps, the truth slipped from Amy's lips. "No," lightly. "Far from it. Perhaps," with a cynical laugh, "I'm paying for the sins of a previous incarnation."

Jessie laughed at the idea. Amy was always saying foolish things. Then she went out to turn down the gas burners under the wash boilers, and came back, ready to postpone washing, which could happen any day, while Amy might never come again.

"Have you any children?" she asked when she had settled in a rocker glassy with fresh varnish and creaky with age.

"One, but it died," answered Amy briefly.

"Oh!" with pity. "We've got two. They're at school. Girls, I'm glad to say. Good gracious!" She rose, and s rried over to the blue satin settee. There was a streak of yellow. "I told Ezra hasn't laid his pipe there and left a scorch. And I just had it recovered. He never thinks," with a plaintive sigh.

Amy sat up indignantly. "I'd tell him what I thought of him! How inconsiderate!" Even though she considered the settee a monstrosity, she could sympathize with Jessie.

"Oh, goodness," laughed Jessie, her irritation vanishing. "It wouldn't do a bit of good. He'd be sorry, and then he'd be mad, and then he'd forget again in a day or so, and do it again. Or something else."

"That's just like my husband," Amy cried fiercely. "I've applied for a divorce!"

"My goodness!" cried Jessie. "Does he beat you—or drink?"

"No," still fiercely. "He—he—we simply don't get on."

"Oh!" The monosyllable was noncommittal. Jessie's full face wrinkled worriedly. Her eyes were grieved. Then through the worry glinted a dry smile. "Lots of married people do that."

"Do what?" Amy demended.

"Don't get on together. In fact," and the glint of a smile deepened into positive mirth, "I don't know many as do get on all the time. Do you hate him?"

"Sometimes." Amy's cheeks burned red with anger at remembered wrongs. "Of course," lamely, "he's nice sometimes."

"Is he tired of you?"

"Of me?" haughtily. 'Certainly not. He's just stubborn."

"So's Ezra," absently. 'I used to wear myself out trying to make him quit wearing green neckties. He likes 'em, but he looks awful in green. But I give up. Anything for peace. And after all it didn't matter. I guess," with a comfortable laugh, "nobody but his wife, maybe, pays any attention to a middle-aged man's necktie."

Amy opened her eyes wide. "Why—that's just like Howard. He's wild about green, and he ordered a limousine with green leather cushions when he knows—"

"You surely aren't going to get a divorce over a little thing like that?" Jessie sat up straight and her eyes bulged.

"There were so many little things," Amy declared wrathfully, taking more to comfort herself than for advice. "But no big ones," said Jessie pointedly.

"No," she acknowledged, half sullenly.

"How old are you, Amy?" Jessie asked absently. "Forty-three?"

"Forty-one," snapped Amy. "Do I look so old?"

"Well," Jessie acknowledged, with a gurgling laugh, "you don't look like you did when you were fourteen. I suppose your husband is getting on in years, too?"

Amy gasped. "Getting on in years" was ridiculous applied to Howard's keen eyes and young face. But his hair was graying.

"Do you hate him?"

"Ten years more and you'll be fifty-one," Jessie continued.

"And Howard will be fifty-six," Amy murmured, thoughtfully. Her eyes blurred with tears. "He's so stubborn," she persisted.

"And you're not," said Jessie. "I remember," reminiscently, "at school you always used to be so pleasant about giving up your way. I guess that was why every one liked you. I suppose you started giving up to him—"

"Jessie!" said Amy, grievedly. For she remembered plainly that she had been rather spoiled and folks had given up to her because it was easiest. "No," she admitted shamefacedly, "he always gave up till lately."

"Don't be a fool," said Ezra Karle's wife, plainly. "The idea of two middle aged folks applying for a divorce!"

Amy flushed. The idea of age was not pleasant. Then she looked searchingly at Jessie's comfortable, easy-going face. Jessie was looking plaintively at the scorched spots on her blue satin. Amy realized that a motorman's wages didn't allow for many recoverings. Yet Jessie, for peace, would let it go.

"What a fool I've been!" Amy Gerhardt said.

KHAKI TAFFETA MODEL

On some of the new clothes intended for winter wear there are high collars, but most of them show collars that are low in front, even if they are high in back. This frock of khaki taffeta is made with a simple, rolling collar of black and khaki striped silk. The same silk forms the sash, which ends in a bow at the left side. The outsanding peplum and the long sleeves both put this simple gown in the realm of the latest fashions. The hat is made of black velvet.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—There are some very good looking white wash blouses offered every day to the woman who is getting a new coat suit.

It is not improbable that the colored blouse for the ordinary coat suit will not be as fashionable as formerly. The time of the year may have something to do with the plentitude of muslin and linen, but on every hand one sees the choice given to the wash blouse instead of the fanciful one.

There was a day when one ordered a blouse of chiffon or net, lavishly embroidered and trimmed with lace, to go with the coat suit, but if straws show the wind, then the well-dressed American woman will wear white blouses with her coat suits.

They may not all be of wash fabrics. There is too much lace in the world at present for muslin to go without a rival, and satin puts in an appearance now and then in order not to let the world forget its rather fascinating qualities as a material, taking it by and large, the well-made white wash waist is to be the fashionable thing.

But, mind you, it must be well made and of good fabric. No heavy machine stitching, no coarse embroidery, no penny laces. Batiste, Paris muslin, net, and handkerchief linen are the four fabrics preferred, and narrow Irish insertion without a design. Cluny of very good weave, and that heavy French Valenciennes which never goes really out of fashion when it is genuine, are the laces one sees on every hand.

Blouses Fasten in Front.

None of the French blouses fasten in the back, which is a grateful fact to many women and men. The opening is in a stright line from neck to waist and there is not any especial effort made to conceal the buttons. All the trimming is in straight lines, from shoulder to waist, and the armholes are in their proper places and not pitched headlong to the elbow or tortured into irregular outline. Seam-beading is used, and tucks are variable in size, but pressed closely to the surface.

The pleated frill remains, but it has changed its shape and is not quite as voluminous as it was. Some of the collars are high in front, no matter how high they may extend in the back.

One does not see much of the Romney shirt waist, but the Romney neckpiece is exploited in all the shops and is widely approved by women. This is a separate little accessory to a one-piece frock, and is made up from a collar in fichu effect that is boned to stand high at the back of the neck with soft fronts that are gathered to this collar and to a tape that goes about the waist and keeps the neckpiece in place.

Long Sleeves on Blouses.

The most marked fact about the new blouses is their simplicity, which is gained by the fineness of material used and the absence of trimming, except in small quantities. If any embroidery is used, it is not more than one-quarter inch wide and is put on in design down the fronts and in a straight band at top of collar and at edge of cuffs.

The majority of the sleeves are long, although the French think that the Americans prefer elbow sleeves and they continue to offer them. The turn-over cuff is not used and one does not see any more of the crepe-de-chine Robespierre blouses.

PREMATURE GRAYNESS CAN BE AVERTED

THE hair turns gray because it has lost vitality, due to sickness, nervous strain, deficient nutrition and sometimes hereditary causes. To pull out the hairs when they begin to turn white is simply to enlarge the cells, coarsen the hair and cause it to whiten more quickly than if left alone.

The best and only satisfactory treatment for premature grayness is a pure, reliable hair restorative, such as Robinaire Hair Dye. This resorative is prepared in our own laboratory, a scientific formula, and we guarantee it to be non-injurious. It is not to bleach or change the original color, but is to restore faded or gray hair to its natural color and lost vitality. Its tonic effect makes the hair soft, lustrous and beautiful, and keeps it in a healthy condition. Does not stain the scalp and its use cannot be detected.

Don't let gray hair stand in your way either in the social or business world, for thousands of others are using this splendid restorative with best results. We have sold it for over a quarter of a century without even one complaint against it. It is a pure, beneficial restorative and cannot harm you. For light, medium and dark brown and black hair. Motor Racers Get Together Tuesday Night in Good Eveuts

One Inning Is Enough to Beat Cracker Clan

Good Ball Is Played in Most Every Inning—Error and Wild Pitch Followed by Another Error Helped

Worn with an eighteen-hour road trip, but trained down to their real fighting weight, the Turtles arrived in Atlanta Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock and at 3:30 started an argument with the Crackers that lasted until old Doc Darkness intervened. The dusk ended the contest in the eleventh inning, with the count three all.

Joe Conzelman was pitted against Glen Liebhardt. As far as pitching went honors were about even, both men battling through the hectic contest, and if anything were stronger at the finish than the beginning. Joe yielded nine hits and Glen eight.

The Turtles did first scoring when they got three in the sixth. Love singled, and advanced to second when Long dropped Merritt's pop fly. Baerwald singled, scoring Love, and on a wild pitch Merritt counted. Baerwald scored when Ward singled to Bisland, and Bizzy seeing it was too late to get Baerwald at the plate, threw to first and found Agler napping. Agler did not get his hands up and the ball went to the stand.

In the same inning the Turtles scored their runs, the Crackers came in and rapped out two. Agler singled and scored on Tommy Long's sizzling three-bagger to the score board. Welchonce flew out to Schweitzer and then Wally Smith singled, scoring Tommy. Agler again scored in the eighth on his own single. Long's sacrifice and Welchonce's single.

Jack Love, Turtle second sacker, was the brilliant star of the day at the bat. He gaothered four hits out of five trips to the plate and stole two bases.

Tommy Long also had a field day. Out of five times to face the pitcher he made three hits and a sacrifice, and also stole two bases. His three-bagger in the sixth was the longest hit of the day, and came at a critical period.

In the third inning George Merritt, Bernhard's Man Friday, pulled some of the circus comedian stuff. Joe Agler lined a drive to him in center and the bleachers set up a yell, thinking the ball was going through. However, George got it. Then he ran in yelling like Germany Schafer and made a bow to the sun gods.

"Sugar Glen" Liebhardt showed some of the old stuff that reminded us of the old boy when in his prime in this league. He used to pitch double-headers every second or third day and win most of them, too. The iron man activity got him, though, when he went to the big show, and the Naps kept him only a few seasons.

Al Nixon has plenty of speed, although he had little chance to show it on the paths. Out of five times up he failed to hit safely, but he made desperate efforts to beat out some of his infield taps.

DOUBLE BILL FOR TUESDAY

Price and Thompson Work for the Crackers in Memphis Battles

The Turtles and the Crackers in a double bill is the program at Ponce Park for the fans Tuesday afternoon. Yesterday's game went for eleven innings without a decision and the two games Tuesday will be good ones.

Bill Smith is anxious to land both if possible and he will use Gilbert Price in the first battle and Carl Thompson in the last. Bill Bernhardt is not without a desire to win them and he will put up Newton and Harrell to shoot at the Crackers.

The first game will be called at 2:15 o'clock.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

While the Crackers were getting a draw with the Turtles Monday the Gulls won over the Barons and put a half-game between them and the Crackers. But Chattanooga took their game from the Billikens and pushed them a little further down on the ladder.

The Phillies won their game, shutting out St. Louis, but the Giants pulled one out of the fire in the last inning and counteracted this.

Cleveland won, but the Athletics did likewise, so no change took place.

In the National, the Giants lack one point of having 100 points lead over the Phillies. The Athletics are leading the Naps by not quite so wide a margin, 78 points separating these teams.

Star Players To Meet Here

The Cotton States tennis championship will be pulled off on the East Lake courts beginning September 8. The tournament this late i nthe year is a new idea with the Atlanta athletic club but so far the proposition has met with much success and the large number of out-of-town entrants assure the Atlanta tennis enthusiasts the best playing since the southern tournaments of a few years back.

Crack players from the country clubs at Birmingham, Chattanooga, Memphis, New Orleans, Macon, Augusta and other southern cities have entered. The players from these clubs are in good shape and will give a good account of themselves in the coming tournament.

Atlanta will be well represented as usual. The old guard will be on hand to fight it out again. There are also a bunch of younger cracks who will try out against the veterans.

The entry list will be closed about the 6th of September and all names should be sent in to Carleton Smith at the Walton building, Atlanta.

SOUTHERNERS WHO STARRED

Derrill Pratt failed to hit safe out of his two times at the bat. He had five chances in the infield, but booted one of them.

Balenti errored one of his three chances also. He was up four times without a hit.

McAllester was shoved in to bat for Leverenz in the ninth inning and cracked out a safe hit, but there was no one to put him across.

A. Demaree went seven innings for the Giants and was one run to the bad when he was relieved by Crandall. He allowed only four hits during the time he pitched. The Giants won the game, 2 to 1, in the ninth inning.

Joe Jackson connected safe only once out of his four trips to the pan. He did not have a busy day in the outer garden, only one put-out coming his way.

Sweeney was the receiving end of the battery for the Yankees, but failed to help win the stick. He got away with the fielding in good style.

Tris Speaker went to the plate five times and landed one shot into safe territory. In the outfield he accepted three chances.

Steve Yerkes poled a two-bagger out of four attempts and scored a run besides. He had a slow day at second, getting only one put-out.

Jimmy Archer caught a winning game for the Cubs but failed to get in any stick work. Al Bridwell romped around short in the same contest in good style. Six assists were accepted by him and not one booted. He also got a hit.

Jake Daubert frisked around the initial sack for the Dodgers until he had gathered in eleven put-outs and figured in a fast double play. His big bludgeon smashed hits out at a .333 per cent clip.

COBB VS. JACKSON

Only one point separates Cobb and Jackson in their fight for the leading batting honors of the American league. Cobb is leading the ex-Southern leaguer by one point.

In Monday's games Cobb hit safe one time out of three. The best Jackson could do was to connect once out of four times.

Here are the figures.

Pitcher Goes Up

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Pitcher Faber, of the Des Moines club of the Western league, today was purchased by President Comiskey, of the Chicago Americans. He is a big right hander and reports to the local club in the spring. The amount paid for the player was not announced.

Jim Callahan Pleases Owner

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—President Chas. A. Comiskey, of the White Sox, agrees that a man never is too old to learn something. Some of the information he has acquired today was contained in a detailed story in the Boston Globe, "Based on Authentic Information from Chicago," that Hal Chase and Harry Lord have gone after Jimmy Callahan's job as manager, because Comiskey is dissatisfied with the Zelder-Chase trade as engineered by Callahan.

"How about this scoop from Boston?" he was asked.

"There is absolutely nothing in it," he replied, emphatically. "Taking up the Zelder-Chase deal first, you can say for me that I am satisfied with every detail of that famous swap.

"There are no cliques on the White Sox team. Nobody is after Callahan's job that I know of. And if anybody's after it had better consult me, for I am liable to figure prominently in the negotiations.

"I want to say that there is one thing and only one thing wrong with the White Sox. They are not hitting. That sums it up—tells the whole story. Every ball team has a slump of some kind now and then. Ours is in the batting. To take this one fact and build thereon an elaborate structure of rumors that we are torn by internal dissension, are dissatisfied with one another's business operations, and sore at one another on the field is unfair to us. Give us time. That's all we want.

"As for Callahan, he has done and is doing everything possible to give the South Side a winning ball team. To say that he is about to be dismissed as manager is absurd. To say I am sore over the Chase deal is equally ridiculous. As a matter of fact, I gave Jimmy authority to make any swap he wanted to for Chase, leaving the details to him."

ATLANTA OUT FOR RECORD

Efort Is Being Made to Run Attendance for Season Up to 200,000

There is all sort of rivalry between Atlanta and Birmingham. Each city wishes to come out ahead of the other in the race for the baseball pennant and now a war for the largest attendance has been started. And this war promises to be even hotter than that for the higher place in the percentage table.

Right now Birmingham holds the upper hand. The two teams have played the same number of games at home, but Birmingham has managed to draw a bit better than the Crackers and are out in front with something like 4,000 heads to spare. And it is up to Atlanta to get ahead.

Atlanta holds the Southern league attendance record. This figure is 186,000 and was made in 1907 when Billy Smith won a pennant. This year the team is far behind this mark, but with something like a dozen more games to be played at Ponce de Leon there is a chance that the figure can be bettered. And it is best to better it while there is a chance, for there is no telling just when Birmingham will jump up and go ahead of the mark.

A big field day is booked for Wednesday and this should prove an added attraction. The fact that the Cracker club is playing real baseball is enough to draw out the loyal fans, but with an added attraction of a field meet the crowd should be larger.

C., Aug. 26.—The manager for Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, after agreeing with the manager of Freddie Welsh, the British contender, on Jim Griffin, of San Francisco, as referee of the bout set for September 20, today announced that unless Griffin consented to act and articles were signed by tomorrow the bout would be declared off. Griffin today asserted that he would not referee the fight.

Police sanction was refused today for a bout between Ritchie and Ray Campbell on Labor Day because of Campbell's poor showing in a recent fight.

Cheyenne Polo Team Wins Easy Match

He rose quickly, however, and resumed play. In the sixth period Keene and Scott again collided and Keene was rendered unconscious. While in a few moments, however, he resumed play.

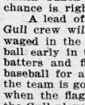
M'Loughlin Is The Favorite

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 26.—Finals for the national lawn tennis championship betwen Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, the title holder, and R. Norris Williams II, of Philadelphia, one of the most successful challengers, attracted a great throng to the Casino today.

McLoughlin was an almost prohibitive favorite in spite of the fact that Williams pushed him to two five-set matches last year and gave him several stiff contests this year.

FANS CHEERED HARD, BUT DIDN'T SPEAK

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Two hundred enthusiastic speechtaxers attended Monday's American league game rooted for the Naps or the Yankees, but didn't say a word. They cheered with their hands. They were delegates to the convention of the National Association of Deaf. They were guests of President Sommers, of the Cleveland club.



BUNTS AND BINGLES

BY JULIAN MURPHEY

While all local fans would like just the best in the world to pick up the 1913 Southern league pennant there is but very little chance of performing this feat and Mobile has a big lead to make any prediction that Finn Jose his hold on the top round of the ladder.

THE FIGHTING CHANCE.

You, of course, hear a great deal about the old fighting chance, all of which is all right, but a fighting chance means almost no chance. And the Crackers have a fighting chance. It is only fair to the Billy Smith bunch to figure that the team stands a chance to win but this chance is right now in bed very ill, and only a slump on the part of the Gull crew will put the Crackers in the lead.

waged in the Southern. This lead was gained by most phenominal baseball early in the race, and has been held by consistent work by pitchers, batters and fielders. Mobile club has played the most consistent baseball for almost five months it is hardly within reason to believe that the team is going to blow sky high during the last two weeks of the season when the flag is in sight. Everybody want to win and you can bet that the Gull players are in the fighting for every game.

ATLANTA IS STRONG.

As the Atlanta club stands at the present time there is not one shadow of a doubt but that the outfit is just as good as Mobile. But that isn't it. Mobile has been strong all season and the Atlanta club did not get the present personnel until late in the campaign and by then Mobile was too far out in front.

The Atlanta club has done its share of work this season. The team has jumped from a tail-end combination in 1912 to a near pennant winner in 1913 and this is just as good as you could ask. Fandom has had a run for its money and should continue to turn out to support the club. Just as long as a team is playing jain-up baseball and giving everyone a run for their money there is no kick to be made.

MACK PLANNING AHEAD.

Though Connie Mack and his Philadelphia Americans are right now in the thick of a hot race for a pennant the wise mogul of the Athletics is beginning to plan for the 1914 season. He realizes that he will have a hard time winning the present flag and yet he is just shrewd enough to look ahead and try to win another.

One of the most unusual feats ever performed by any major league manager was recently pulled by Mack when he picked up Pitcher Shawkey from a Class AA league and at once shoved him into the breach on his own club. Never before has a manager with a chance for a world's championship *so complimented a youngster, but the wily manager of the Ath*letics is getting away with the trick in grand order. It is the pulling of something new that wins flags and this something new Mack always has up his sleeve. In other words what it takes to win a pennant Connie

WANTED—NEW HEADLINES.
I have wearied of the Mackmen and the Giants ;
I have long since had a grouch on Harry Thaw ;
All this Mexicanic squabble has me sadly on the wobble
And a Bryanistic headline makes me raw;
Every day I scan the columns of the papers
Where the same old line of actors lead the yell;
Won't some new erratic gent on some new lined purpose bent
Kindly step beneath the spotlight for a spell?

Every now and then a new one wiggles outward.
But he never crowds the old ones off the track;
I trail them in their vapors through the leading daily papers—
In the magazines I meet them coming back.
It's Matty, Wagner, Bryan or another
From the same old batting order raising h——l;
Won't some new guy jolt the nation with a brand new innovation
And resusticate the spotlight for a spell?

For example, there hasn't been a world series without either Giants or Athletics involved in the preliminary dope since 1909. Too much of a thing is well enough, but an abundance is something else again.

Beginning with October, we absorb the same old problem as to whether it will be Matty vs. Bender or Marquard vs. Plank, with the usual number of words as to the advisability of feeding J. F. Baker a fast high one in a pinch.

WANTED AGAIN—

What we are yearning for as to see the Boston crash headlong into the St. Louis Browns for the leading wreath of laurel. Or to observe the Reds around their camp fires upon the eve of a world series conflict with the Yanks.

But what we want and what we are going to get is rarely one and the same. In the meanwhile is looks as if Bender, in condition, should be a tough man for the Giants to——(wait'll we dig up a few 1911 files).

Joe Tinker, the Redland leader, is said to be a bit dejected over the Cincinnati outlook for 1914. How about 1915? Or 1923?

Our old side kick, Walter Hapgood, says he doesn't believe both Giants and Mackmen will enter the next world series. Possibly not. But we'd like to have about $10,000 at even money strung in this general direction, or verging toward the vicinity at least. It isn't so much what Giants and Mackmen can do as to what the others can't do when the big test arrives. Naps and Phillies have partially crushed the force of habit, but there are still germs from the old days which slip forth and blink just at the most untoward period of the battle.

VARDON THE NON-PAREIL.

Those who have yet to see Harry Vardon swing a club against a golf ball have yet to see the last element in golfing form. They say "form" doesn't count for anything and possibly they are right. On the other hand, if ease and grace and wonderful smoothness fail to count for anything, a good big season of the game is of no use. "Results are what we want," states the average player. Very true. But doesn't the entry who can obtain the same result with 50 per cent less effort carry something of an edge above the one who arrives in time, but with no margin left for the next start?

IN BASEBALL.

Of all ball players, Nap Lajoie has obtained more with less effort than any rival contender. Of all pitchers, Mathewson wastes less stuff than any other. It wasn't "form" that made these two a wonderful pair. But it was "form" that after nearly two decades has left them still around the top where those souls striving solely for "results" and nothing else flopped by the wayside seasons ago.

The main answer is to reach the spot you have started for. But the next reply is to get there over the right road.

The Athletics are fairly sure to start their final series at home with a safe lead. Any club that can overhaul this outfit batting and battling on home soil is entitled to what it can get; just as any one who can write better plays than Shakespeare is due for quite a reception and the rest of it.

"What ball clubs in the two leagues carry the two best pitching staffs?" queries a reader.

On copy paper in the National league, Pittsburg. On the ball field, New York. The greatest pitching staff in the American league is Wal——but of course you know that in advance.

Whittier Wins

The Whittier Mills met and defeated the strong Lois Mills team, of Douglasville, in one of the prettiest games of the season, on the former's grounds, by the score of 6 to 0. Mullins was certainly right and when he is using one of his good days the opposition have not the slightest chance to forge in the lead. One man reached first base during the first seven innings. He struck out sixteen batsmen and did not allow a pass. Only two balls were hit to the infield, and he gave up but three scratch hits. The hitting feature of the afternoon was the three-base hit of Chowers with the bases full, putting the game so far to Whittier. Whittier played a splendid fielding game, accepting every chance in grand style. The brightest feature for the visitors was the pitching of Broome. The score:

Devlin Goes; Is Too Slow

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—The passing of another veteran player from major league baseball was recorded today when President James Gaffney, of the Boston National League club, announced that Arthur Devlin, third baseman, had been released to Rochester of the International league.

Devlin was one of the old New York National league stars whose work helped the Giants win several league championships and one world's championship—that of 1905. Since he came to the local National club in the spring of 1912 his fielding has been up to his former average, but in batting and base running he fell off to such an extent this season that he has been used only as a substitute.

Devlin's last game in the big league had something of the dramatic about it. Coming to the bat as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning against Pittsburg he drove in the run which tied the score for Boston with a well placed hit to right field. He did not know at that time that he was to be released after the game.

WATCH DETROIT CLUB IN THE 1914 RACE, SAYS GRIFF

Leave it to Mr. C. Griffith, manager of the Washington baseball team, to break into the public prints with something new.

Not that said Mr. C. Griffith is a publicity seeking pest, or anything like that, but ideas just naturally gravitate to him. He was the person who saved money for other American league managers and club owners by refusing to pay fabulous sums for sensational minor leaguers, and he molded the Nationals into a pennant contender in a spring's training trip.

Now, with the close of the major league season nearly two months distant and the winner of the pennant not yet settled—that is to say, settled beyond argument—Griffith comes out with the statement that Washington, Philadelphia and Detroit look like the active contenders for the 1914 pennant.

Griffith's disposition would not permit that he count the Nationals out of the running, the tenants of his head would not allow him to place the Athletics in the second division, and his baseball sense lead him to believe that Jennings will have a dangerous aggregation of players next season.

"The Detroit team has shown a vast amount of improvement in the past two or three months," said Clark this morning. "In the spring it was a hopeless aggregation of players. But Jennings has whipped the men into line and he will give us a fight next year. He has two fine young pitchers in Hall and Dauss. Dauss is one of the best-looking young pitchers to come into the American league in years. Dubuc is also a fine pitcher, although he seems to have had an off year. Veach is a slugging outfielder, and the Detroit infield, as it stands, is a fine one.

"One man—C. Griffith—is figuring on how to beat Detroit next year."

Griffith says that Coveleskie, the big left-hander, purchased from the Chattanooga club, has a lot of natural ability and that it is quite possible that Detroit has picked up a star performer.

Coveleskie was with Griffith in Cincinnati, but was shunted on to the minors. He lacked experience.

The Washington players were considerably surprised a few days ago to "learn that George McBride would succeed Bill Carrigan as manager of the Boston Red Sox." And, incidentally, McBride was more surprised than any.

"Such a story is so idle that it's silly," declared McBride last night. "I do not know where it originated and I can only say that the subject has never been broached to me. In the first place I do not care for the position, and secondly, I would not take it if it was offered to me.

"President McAleer, of the Boston club is a good friend—that's all."

"Boston would have to pay a pretty proce to get McBride," declared Griffith. "George is one of the most valuable players in the major league. It is my opinion that the yarn was manufactured."

JACKSON PLAYS POORLY: LOSING CHANCE FOR AUTO

Joe Jackson will have to be up and doing if he is to get serious consideration from the Chalmers automobile trophy commission. Jax was in high favor with several members of the commission up to this week, but since he helped Washington to two victories by his failure to catch Milan's short fly on Monday and Johnson's foul on Tuesday and his weird exhibition against Boston Friday, his stock has dropped several points.

Jackson never played poorer ball than on Friday. First of all, he muffed Hooper's easy fly in the fourth. In the fifth, when Carrigan drove a lone single to right, Joe grabbed the ball on the first bound and essayed a quick throw to Johnston at first.

Jackson has thrown out one base runner on a clean drive to right field this season and keeps right on throwing to first, although he has made several bad throws. Friday was one of his bad throw days. The ball caught in his finger nails or something, and instead of traveling toward first base, shot off toward the first base pavilion. Carrigan reached second on the throw and was in position to score when Leibold grievously misjudged an easy fly back of second by Bedient, a little pop that any seven-year-old youngster should have caught, and the Red Sox scored their first run.—Cleveland News.

Who Owns Lost Balls GOLF Found On the Links?

A caddie employed at the North Middlesex club was seen to enter the club grounds and pick up a ball, says Golf Illustrated. He then fled, pursued by a policeman, and on being caught was found to be in possession of five balls. He said that he had found them "out bounds," and not on the course. The magistrates' clerk advised the bench that, inasmuch as the secretary of the Middlesex club was the prosecutor and not the owner of the balls, and, moreover, as the secretary of the club was not present, the boy should be discharged. On the question of what should be done with the balls, the magistrates' clerk said they belonged to the prisoner, as he knew of no law by which a lost ball could be said to be property vested in the secretary of a club, and if the prosecutor was not present to place his view before the bench. The magistrates, therefore, dismissed the charges.

Although it is clear that the boy got off on the technical point that the prosecutor was not present, the law as laid down by the magistrates' clerk was widely interpreted to mean that the finder of a lost golf ball, the search for which has been abandoned by its owner, is entitled to keep it.

Stated in this way the decision is absurd on the face of it. In the first place, if the ball can be identified, or even if it is found in the private grounds of a club, any person who finds it is guilty of theft if he pockets it without making any attempt to find the owner. A caddie employed at a particular club who finds and keeps golf balls which he knows belong to members is as guilty of dishonesty as a hotel servant who picks up and keeps money dropped in the hotel premises.

But even if it were impossible to trace the proper owner of a lost golf ball, the fact that it was found on private ground is sufficient to upset the dictum of the magistrates' clerk, if the North Middlesex club are themselves the owners of the course, any property the owners of which cannot be identified, found on it belongs to them, and if they merely rent the land, such property belongs to the landlord. This was decided by Lord Russell of Killowen in 1896, in a case in which a workman employed in clearing out a pool belonging to a water company found two rings. Lord Russell held that in the absence of the true owners any chattel found on the land belonged to the person entitled to possess the land. A ball driven "out of bounds" on to land outside the club's property does not, however, become the property of the owner of such land, and the "true owner" may enter the private property and recover his ball, subject only to any damage he may do in entering and searching for his ball.

It would be very unfortunate if the publicity given to this case should encourage the loafers and dishonest caddies who now make a regular trade of stealing and selling golf balls in the idea that they are entitled to keep any golf balls they may find. The dishonest traffic in golf balls is a growing one and needs no encouragement. It would be well, if all clubs would adopt the system of registration which has already been adopted in many clubs whereby the golf balls of each member are marked with his initials or club number. If found by a caddie they are taken to the caddie master, who returns them to their owners on payment of a small fee, part of which goes to the finder. This plan works most efficiently wherever it has been tried, and in these days of long grass and expensive balls it effects an enormous saving to the members.

Umps Is Hurt; Fans Go Wild

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The crowd at the Brooklyn-Chicago game yesterday had an unusual diversion in the troubles of Chief Umpire Brennan.

Three times Brennan was painfully hurt when balls struck him. A hot foul scraped his shin just after the game opened and he hopped about in pain. Another foul struck his mask with such force that Brennan had to call time for a minute until the pain of the blow had ceased. In the eighth inning a pitched ball went through Archer's hands and landed on Brennan's chest. The crowd jeered.

Georgetown may again take up rowing.

Shadows Hurt Best Fielders

Fred Clarke Tells of Trouble From Shadows From the High Stands

PITTSBURG, Aug. 26.—Fred Clarke, leader of the Pittsburg club and once one of the greatest outfielders in the game, who always knows the whys and wherefores of a baseball player's life, is there with the alibi for the present crop of men who play in the center garden. It has been noticed time and again that some of the present-day set judge fly balls badly, and the snap-judgment boys are there with such stuff as "bonehead" and the like. But here is what Clarke says about it, and isn't it a fact?

"The reason present day players do not judge fly balls as quickly as they used to may be attributed to the advance of baseball," begins the Pirate leader. "It is because of the great progress the game has made as a business, and as a result of the huge grandstands at all major league parks. In the old days of the little one-story wooden stands it was easy to see all fly balls knocked high in the air, because the shadow caused by the stand was not a tall one. As soon as the balls rose above the roofs of the grandstands it was easy to judge them.

"Today it is different. The stands at the most of the parks are huge, dark affairs, and when filled with spectators it is a mighty difficult proposition to tell which is the ball and which are the faces of the fans until one unless the sphere rises clear above the roof. And it takes a hard-hit ball these days to go higher than the top of some of the stands—for instance, that of Forbes field.

"I remember once, when I was with Louisville, we returned from a trip to find that the grandstand was destroyed by fire. We played a couple of games on the bare lot without any grandstand, and it's a fact that none of us could judge fly balls. Why? Because the usual landmarks were missing, and certain things by which we had gauged balls in the past were gone."

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Taking the Hens Through Moult

WITH the arrival of "dog days" comes the most critical time in the life of our hens, the time of the annual moult. The shedding of the old feathers and the growing of the new plumage comes just at the time when the vitality of the hen is at low ebb. The long laying season, together with the hot weather, have pretty well drained her strength and brought her to the place where she needs special care if she is to go into the winter season in full vigor, and ready to do her share in replenishing the egg basket.

In a normal moult, about four months are required for a complete change of plumage, the first feathers beginning to fall about the first of July. During the fore part of the moult, egg production is not materially decreased. But as the process advances and the drain on the system incident to the growth of new plumage increases, egg production gradually drops off until, by the first of September, it has practically ceased. As a general rule, egg laying, having once stopped, will not begin again until the new coat of feathers is complete.

Fortunate, indeed, is the poultry raiser who can successfully bring his hens through the moult and get them to laying again by the middle of November. For, in that case, they will probably continue to lay right through the winter. On the other hand, if they do not get through the moult in time to commence laying before cold weather comes on, they probably will not begin laying until next spring. This is the reason why poultry-men who wish to produce winter eggs for market are so anxious to get their hens through the moult early.

As a means to this end, some have advocated forcing the moult. This may be done by practically starving the hens for a week or ten days, and then putting them on a heavy ration of rich feed. While this treatment will cause the hens to moult quickly, yet careful experimental evidence has not shown it to be entirely successful in the matter of later egg production. This is probably due to the general shock to the system caused by the starving process, followed by unusually heavy feeding.

It is the general concensus of opinion that it is best to let nature take her own course, while man simply sees to it that the environment in which the hen lives together with her feed and care, are as nearly ideal as possible. It is especially important that moulting hens be kept free from lice, and that their roosting quarters be kept free from vermin. They should be clean and well ventilated. Hens are more susceptible to disease during the moult than at any other time, and it is for this reason that special precautions in matters of cleanliness and sanitation should be taken.

The feeding of moulting hens should not differ greatly from the feeding of laying hens. Both eggs and feathers are rich in nitrogen, so that food which is adapted for making eggs is also adapted for making feathers. Feathers, however, are richer in oil than eggs, and some food of an oily nature should be added to the ration to supply this want. It has been determined conclusively that the adding of a liberal amount of sunflower seed, or flax seed, or oil meal, to the ration of moulting hens, makes them moult faster, and leaves them in a stronger condition, with more vitality.

In conclusion it may be said that the successful handling of hens during the moult is a matter of constant watchfulness and attention to details, pertaining to feed, water, care, housing, cleanliness and sanitation.

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS, ATTENTION!
No more worry about punctures. PUNCTURE SEALO solves the trouble.
PUNCTURE SEALO injected into your tubes will seal any puncture up to a twenty-penny nail, will preserve and lengthen the life of your tubes and lessen blow-outs by eliminating rim cuts. It will not injure the tubes in the casing, will not gum, become hard or evaporate, is not affected by heat or cold weather, does not interfere with the removal of tubes or with vulcanizing.
PUNCTURE SEALO pays for itself many times a season by preventing punctures and rim cuts.
We charge less for PUNCTURE SEALO than any of our imitators. Good territory open to agents who write at once. We are in business to stay.
SAVE TEMPER, TROUBLE, TIME, AND TIRES BY USING PUNCTURE SEALO.

Steam Shovel Begins Grading for Tracks in the Walker Street Development—Impressive Beauty of the Healey Building—Comparison of August Building—Linwood Avenue and Other Sales—Peachtree Changes—Other Notes

Work of grading for railroad tracks through the Walker street development was started Tuesday morning, when steam shovels began operations at the Nelson street bridge and worked towards Haynes street.

Work of laying the tracks will take about sixty days. Meanwhile negotiations are going on for space which the syndicate will offer in buildings they will erect on Walker street.

The syndicate owns or controls about 2,000 feet of street frontage, practically all of which it will improve. One building it has in mind will cost $125,000.

BEAUTY OF HEALEY BUILDING.

The exterior work on the Healey building has progressed far enough to impress passers-by with the extraordinary beauty of the structure. The finish is in terra-cotta, with the exception of some granite at the base.

A sort of cathedral effect has been obtained with the arched windows and fluted columns, and yet this effect is simple and not overloaded with ornament.

With the completion of this and the Hurt building—the latter is almost ready for occupancy—Atlanta will have two office buildings that will compare favorably in beauty, if not in size, with any buildings in New York or Chicago.

There are enough applications for space in the Healey building almost to fill it, and a considerable amount of space in the Hurt building has already been leased.

Later on, as the demand justifies, additions will be made to both buildings.

BUILDING COMPARISON.

So far this month, the value of building permits is about $80,000 behind the corresponding month last year, but there is every probability that the record will show an increase as the year comes to a close, owing to many conditions that already resulted in more activity among the home builders.

As money continues to grow easier, larger building operations will be started, and it is not at all unlikely that early next year will see a building revival like that of the early part of 1912, when the present impressive group of structures, either completed or nearly so, was first planned.

LINWOOD AVENUE SALE.

F. A. Pittman has sold to Mrs. Mattie H. Norcross 118 Linwood avenue, a residence property, for a consideration of $7,700.

This property is 150 feet north of Norwich avenue, and consists of a residence on a lot 62x200.

Another residence sale on Linwood avenue, and a few residence sales in other sections, were included in a fair assortment of bonds for title that went to record on Tuesday.

PEACHTREE LEASE.

Edward Alfriend, who has leased a store room at 97 Peachtree street to the Atlanta Floral company, is changing the store front for the lessees, who will move from a location nearer Five Points.

Another Peachtree front that is being changed is that at 75 Peachtree street, occupied by the Meyers-Marcus company.

PUBLIC SALES.

On next Tuesday the public sales for September will be held at the court house. These will include administrators' and sheriff's sales.

J. B. Jackson will be among the agents with offerings of property. There promises to be quite an attractive assortment of offerings.

REPORTS GOOD CROPS.

People returning to town from the farm sections are unanimous in reporting good crops.

H. F. Martin, manager of the loan department of A. J. & H. P. West, who has just returned from south Georgia and Alabama, reports fine crop conditions in both places.

MRS. LUCAS NOT HELD FOR NEGRO'S KILLING

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANAH, Ga., Aug. 26.—Recorder Schwarz decided yesterday that Mrs. Hattie Lucas did no wrong when she shot and killed Smart Lloyd, a negro, on Thursday night of last week.

It was shown that Lloyd had Mrs. Lucas' husband down in a ditch near a store kept by the Lucases, and that he was trying to open his knife with his teeth to cut him. Mrs. Lloyd came up with a revolver and poking it into the negroe's ribs she pulled the trigger.

Lloyd keeled over and was carried to a hospital, where he died.

The recorder said it was purely a case of justifiable homicide and he would not hold the woman for the grand jury. Public sentiment backs up the recorder in the stand he has taken.

Does Not Think Their Views on Currency Bill Represent All in Country

The president told callers he had received expressions of hearty support for the administration bill, not only from business men generally but from the rank and file of bankers throughout the country and would not compromise on its essential features.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

The Other Case.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation, but my husband thought I had better write to you and I did so, stating my symptoms. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of five. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.

Mother Stanislaus Tells of Recovery

Any person who may doubt the merits of Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for the Throat and Lungs, which has brought about many complete recoveries, should investigate the case of Mother Stanislaus of St. Anne's Convent, Stanford, Fla. She writes:

Convent of St. Anne, 800 Oak Ave., Stanford, Fla.

"Gentlemen: In February, 1911, four doctors examined my throat and pronounced the necessity of an operation. Having heard at Peekskill, N. Y., Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Francis, where I was visiting, of Eckman's Alterative, I determined as a last resort to try it. After taking four or five bottles large pieces of diseased tissue came away. I continued the Alterative, to my grateful and daily relief. In ten months I was restored to perfect health. I would be glad to write or talk to any person who may have a doubt about it. I would like them to see and hear from my own lips, if they so desire, all I would say of it."

(Signed) MOTHER M. STANISLAUS.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system.
